BRITISH RETREAT

—CHAMBERLAIN

ALLIED FLEET HEADS TO EGYPT

BRITAIN ADMITS RETREAT; NAZIS SAY IT'S NEAR ROUT

LONDON, May 2 (AP)—Prime Minister Chamberlain today announced the withdrawal of British forces from Andalsnes, abandoning any idea of taking German-occupied Trondheim from the south.

At the same time he told the House of Commons that British and French battle fleets were in the eastern basin of the Mediterranean on their way to Alexandria, Egypt.

Chamberlain said that "German local air superiority" had made it impossible to land "the artillery and tanks which would be necessary to enable our troops to withstand the enemy drive from the south."

He said the troops were withdrawn "under the very noses of the German airplanes" without the loss of "a single man." (Andalsnes is 100 miles south of Trondheim.)

CONTROL ORE PORT

(Editor's Note—Britain's withdrawal leaves Germany in control of all of southern Norway, including railroad lines, and leaves Britain in control of Namsos, north of Trondheim, and the far northern ore port of Narvik.

(The Allies have been pouring a large number of troops and much supplies into the Namsos area and may be planning an intense drive from that point southward to Trondheim, key point, to date, of the whole Norwegian campaign.)

Chamberlain assured the House Britain has "no intention of allowing Norway to become merely a side show."

MANY NAZI SHIPS SUNK

Though it has not been possible to capture Trandheim, Chamberlain said he was satisfied "that the balance of the advantage lies up to the present with the Allied forces."

"Norway is not conquered," he stated, "after three weeks of war in which heavy losses have been sustained by the enemy on the sea, on land, and in the air."

The naval movement to Alexandria, he said, was to effect "more normal distribution" of ships through release of some from the North Sea.

He said he could not give details of casualties in Norway but believed they were not proportionately heavy.

Chamberlain gave German losses as two capital ships damaged, three or four cruisers sunk, 11 dsetroyers sunk, five submarines sunk, and 36 transports and storeships sunk, scuttled or set on fire with the loss of several thousand lives. In addition, he said, 10 German transports or storeships probably were sunk.

The losses of the German navy, he said "were so substantial as to alter the entire balance of naval power" and permitted "an important redistribution of the main allied fleets."

4 DESTROYERS LOST

British losses at the same time, he said, were four destroyers, three submarines, one sloop and five trawlers sunk and "five other warships" damaged by air attack.

ITALY HELD ALREADY AT WAR

ROME, May 2 (INS)—Italy actually has been in the war since the first day it started and will advance from its present position when the right time comes, Mussolini's newspaper, Popolo D'Italia, declared today.

"Italy has been participating in the war since the first day," Popolo said.

"Disclosure of the time when Italy intends to advance from its position of 'waitfulness' concerns one person exclusively—the man responsible for guiding and safeguarding the fortunes of the Italian people.

"There is little difference between the French and British armies waiting on the Maginot Line and the Italian army waiting in its barracks, offices and fields."

BERLIN, May 2 (INS)—A new junction between German forces operating in Norway, this time along the western coast near Bergen, was announced by the Nazi high command today coincident with charges that the British retreat near Andalsnes is "assuming the proportions of a rout."

German troops advancing northward from Oslo have joined with forces moving south from Bergen, it was said.

Thus the left wing of the German pincer has closed, the high command announced, just as the right one closed a few days ago southwest of Storen.

(Editor's Note—Information from British sources states that the right junction had been severed with German withdrawal from Roros.)

(From Stockholm the Associated Press said Norwegian troops were reported moving west from the Swedish frontier and south through Glomma river valley as German forces fell back to protect their supply lines.

SEEK TO CHECK DRIVE

(Norwegian occupation of Roros and Tynset has prevented the Germans from linking their northern and southern forces, at least temporarily, along this route, the dispatch said.

(Latest reports indicated that the Germans still held Kvikne, west of the Glomma valley and northeast of Dombas, where allied forces still are said to be struggling to check the German drive.)

The full significance of the German withdrawal in the Glomma valley was obscured by conflicting information concerning developments in the Gudbrands valley to the west.

(If the Germans have control of the railway line extending northward through the Gudbrands valley, through Dombas and Storen to Trondheim, their retreat from Roros is not strategically important.

(If, however, the British and their Norwegian allies still hold Dombas, the German force at Trondheim still is isolated from Oslo so far as land communications are concerned.

(British headquarters in Norway not only denied that Dombas had been relinquished to the Germans, but said that the allied position there had been strengthened by the arrival of fairly heavy artillery.)

German troops have now advanced to only 24 miles southeast of Andalsnes, one of the chief British landing places on the Norwegian coast, the high command said today.

As a result of this advance, it was said, the Norwegian commander in the Moeren-Romsdal area has offered to surrender and has ordered his troops to cease their "useless" resistance.

The high command's communique said:

"Operations between Oslo and

Brookline Man, Wife Burned in Rescuing Twins

Battling flames with their bare hands to save the lives of their 11-year-old twin daughters, Mr. and Mrs. Alfred Mahan of Strathmore rd., Brookline were burned, the husband seriously, in a two-alarm fire today.

The mother, Mrs. Isabelle Mahan, 35, fought her way through a burning hallway, guiding her daughters, after her husband collapsed.

As the girls ran downstairs to safety, she herself fell unconscious on a third-floor landing, near the blazing apartment. Firemen found her there and carried her to the street.

Meanwhile, Herbert Douglas, 64, janitor, raced into the burning building and discovered Mahan unconscious, only a few feet from the raging flames.

CARRIED TO SAFETY

Douglas dragged the man to a window and called to firemen as they arrived at the scene. The two men were carried to safety down ladders.

The rescued twins were Nancy and Natalie Robinson, daughters of Mrs. Mahan by a previous marriage.

Mr. and Mrs. Mahan were removed to Peter Bent Brigham Hospital.

Nearly 100 persons, occupants of the block-long, three-story apartment structure, fled from their homes as the fire threatened to spread through the building.

Speedy arrival of firemen confined the flames to the Mahan apartment, although smoke and water caused extensive damage to suites on the lower floors.

DRIVEN TO STREET

Among those driven out were Mrs. Joseph Christie, 45; Miss Bessie A. Houghton, 38, and Mr. and Mrs. Willis H. Coffin on the second floor, and Miss Martha Clauson, Mrs. John H. Clauson and the family of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Clauson on the first floor.

Within a few seconds after the burning building was vacated, a hot air explosion blew out four windows on the top floor. A dozen firemen were showered with broken glass but escaped injuries.

The neighborhood was thrown into confusion by the fire. At nearby Cleveland Circle, the rush of apparatus, police cars and ambulances caused a traffic tie-up.

Cause of the blaze was not determined immediately. Officials estimated the damage at $3000.

TECH BOYS FORM 'ROCHESTER' GUARD

While two Tech students faced court today as a result of a new war over the "Rochester" made arrangements to escort the radio and stage comedian safely to his plane out of Boston tonight.

These four, all members of Tech's Delta Kappa Epsilon fraternity, said they felt that inasmuch as they interrupted the dusky comedian's progress to Harvard by plane on Tuesday night, they deem it their duty to see that he gets out of town without further difficulty.

"Rochester" is making two personal appearances on the stage at the Metropolitan Theater today and tonight, and after the night appearance at 3 a. m. the Tech students will pick him up and take him under guard to Boston airport, from where he will leave for New York.

The Tech men are A. E. Powers of New York, Bill Morrison of Lake Forest, Ill., and Arnold Mengel and Laurence Russe, both of St. Louis.

Meanwhile, victors with their classmates over a Harvard raiding party but losers afterward in a side skirmish with Cambridge police, faced charges in East Cambridge court.

Richard M. Powers, 22, of Senior House, was accused of taking a safety belt from a fire department truck and Frank K. Bennett, 18, of

Bride to Sue Tufts Heir as 'Poor Hubby'

Bowen C. "Sonny" Tufts, wealthy Winchester clubman and night club singer, was right when he declared he would make a poor husband, it was declared in New York today by the former Barbara Minot, one-time film star and his bride of 15 months.

Their marriage, a romantic secret for seven months, has crashed beyond repair, it was announced by Mrs. Tufts, known in her film days as Barbara Dare.

"Sonny told me he wouldn't make a good husband and he has proved it," she said.

"I am convinced he knew what he was talking about. I am having papers served on him at once in a divorce action."

Tufts, scion of a Boston banking family, was singing in a Philadelphia night club and was much too busy to even give an answer to his wife.

Their romance and secret marriage, unknown even to their friends for months, was disclosed when their pet bird tumbled from their New York penthouse. In discussing the bird's injuries, they mentioned "our penthouse" and then the secret had to be told.

They were married at Fort Lee, N. J., Dec. 5, 1938 and had kept their wedding a secret because both had career ambitions. The bridegroom was making the grade as a singer and Barbara had a Hollywood contract.

Tufts, a Yale graduate in the class of 1935, is the son of Mrs. Bowen Charlestown Tufts of Winchester and the late Bowen Tufts, Boston banker. His wife is the daughter of Mrs. Carol Hoxie Reeves and Col. William Minot of Knoxville, Tenn., and a direct descendent of Lord Minot, after whose family Cape Minot in Wales was named.

U. S. Starts Probe Of Quabbin Incomes

Alleged evasion of income taxes by contractors who worked on the $65,000,000 Quabbin Reservoir project is being investigated by a federal grand jury here, it was revealed today.

Income tax trouble for prominent contractors on national and state public works projects had been forecast with the arrival in Boston of Asst. U. S. Atty.-Gen. Gordon Tweedy, who directed government prosecution of horse racing impresario Moe Annenberg.

Into the grand jury room in the federal building today went U. S. Atty. Edmund J. Brandon, in charge of local income tax investigation.

IREY TESTIFIES

He spent more than an hour in the room, then was followed by Hugh Irey, special income investigator who was sent here from Washington to do undercover work in the Dighton dog track operators' income tax evasion case. He is a brother of Elmer Irey, head of the intelligence bureau of the internal revenue bureau in Washington.

The investigation is the first since the dog track operators' case resulted in several indictments.

It was reported that presentation of the present case to the grand indictments against four major contractors.

Waiting to go into the jury room and loaded down with a mass of papers to be presented in evidence were Asst. U. S. Atty. Henry M. Leen, who acts as aide to Brandon in income tax matters, and Asst. U. S. Atty.-Gen. M. Leo Looney.

It was said that the contractors might be given an oportunity to appear before the jury in order to give their version of the case.

The presence of Tweedy, who is head of the criminal and compromise tax division of the Department of Justice, was taken as an indication that the cases being presented involved impressive sums.

MAY GET U. S. COURT POST

Appointment of Peter Woodbury, associate justice of the New Hampshire Supreme Court, to the United States Circuit Court of Appeals in this district was predicted in legal circles today.

STAGE CALLS — Hannah Williams, former Broadway dancer and wife of Jack Dempsey, today was taking singing lessons . . . preparatory, 'tis said, to returning to the footlights. She may appear in a Boston night club.

HITLER REWARD CHEERED, JEERED

NEW YORK, May 2 (INS)—Cheers and jeers today greeted the proposal of Samuel Harden Church, president of the Carnegie Institute, that some adventurer kidnap Adolf Hitler for a $1,000,000 reward offered by a group of Pittsburghers.

While legal minded Americans pointed out that any attempt to "snatch" the German Fuehrer would leave the snatcher open to prosecution for violation of the United States neutrality law, others expressed the opinion "it might not be a bad idea."

Generally, in official circles, the reward offer was regarded as having numerous "embarrassing" angles. The German embassy in Washington indicated, however, that no protest was contemplated.

The New York Times, in whose columns Church announced his reward offer, today reported having received several replies. One a telegram from a professional strong man in Houston, Tex., said: "Will go after Hitler and bring him back. Must have $100,000 drawing account and transportation to Germany made possible."

A man in Los Angeles telegraphed to say he would underwrite an additional $1,000,000 reward for the capture and trial of Hitler on an indictment he had prepared.

Victor Himmelwright, an engineering student at Renaselaer Polytechnic Institute at Troy, N. Y., telephoned and pledged $10,000 for the capture of Prime Minister Neville Chamberlain and French Premier Paul Reynaud, "dead or alive."

Victor said he was a friend of the Allies and was acting in their best interests in seeking to dispose of these leaders. Also, he declared his offer would balance the breach of American neutrality caused by Church's offer.

reporters he has "no further statement to make."

Church's home, however, was placed under police guard, at request of a son, Willy Kupfel, German consul here, termed the offer "just childish."

Norse Girl, Newton Boy Delay Bridal

Worry over the fact that she has received no word from her family at Bergen in war-torn Norway, has caused a temporary postponement of the marriage of Miss Ruth Miese Engelsen, 22, and Carl C. Ellis of Newtonville, third officer of the famed freighter City of Flint.

This was revealed today by the 23-year-old Ellis, who has given up the sea to be at the side of his fiancee, now the guest of his parents in Mt. Vernon ter., Newtonville.

The couple filed marriage intentions April 22 and received their marriage license five days later, but the girl, who arrived in America from Norway less than three weeks ago, has been nervous over failure to hear from her mother, two brothers and a sister.

Young Ellis met the bride-to-be in Bergen during the exciting sea voyage of the City of Flint, which was captured by a German raider and taken to Russia but was finally released by Norwegian government order when the prize crew took the ship into Bergen while en route from Russia to Germany.

When he filed marriage intentions, Ellis said he was through with the sea. He is now working for his father, Morgan L. Ellis, a Boston paper bag and twine dealer.

Their frantic parents called police and spent all the rest of the afternoon and all night searching for the boys.

"We don't like to live in Woburn," they said. "We like Stoneham."

Pope Canonizes Nun, Italian Girl, Blasts War Thirst

VATICAN CITY, May 2 (AP)—Pope Pius XII blamed "excessive human covetousness and thirst for power" for the war raging in Europe in speaking briefly at St. Peter's today at the canonization of two saints.

Men, blinded by these passions, have "repudiated the laws of God" in loosing the horrors of war, he said.

In approving the canonization of the two saints, the Pope appealed to them to intercede with God on behalf of mankind for the restoration of unity, concord and "the counsels of peace."

A French nun and a humble Italian girl—the first persons to be canonized by Pope Pius XII—attained sainthood today.

The sainted women were Maria Euphrasia Pelletier, who founded the Sisters of the Good Shepherd, and Gemma Galgani, who was noted for her reported stigmata, or marks corresponding to the wounds that Christ received when crucified.

The canonizations preceded a series of beatifications, preliminary steps toward sainthood, for five other persons which will take place during the next two months.

Among the beatifications will be that May 12 of another French nun, Mother Philippine Rose Duchesne. She inrtoduced the Society of the Sacred Heart in the United States and died at St. Charles, Mo.

The great church of St. Peter's sparkled with the brilliance of thousands of electric candles for today's ceremony. Twelve thousand lights glistened in 600 chandeliers especially hung in the naves, while other thousands shone from 170 immense candelabra.

Thousands of nuns, priests and laymen crowded the basilica to see the Pope enter on the sedia gestatoris, or portable throne. Six silver trumpets heralded the approach of the pontifical procession, in which marched cardinals, bishops and uniformed officers of the papal guards.

Seated on a throne near the central altar, the Pope was approached by a cardinal and two other priests who thrice petitioned him to declare the blessed pair saints.

On the third request, the Pope rose, put on his three-tiered crown and pronounced in Latin the words that created Saint Marie Euphrasia and Saint Gemma. After mass the Pope bestowed his Apostolic blessing on the congregation, the trumpets sounded and he was borne to his apartments.

Marie Euphrasia Pelletier was born in 1796 at Noirmoutier, France, and joined the order of "Our Lady of the Charity of the Refuge" at 18. Some years later she was superior of the house at Tours, then founded a chapter at Angers and petitioned the Pope to make it the motherhouse of the whole order.

She was accused of disobedience, ambition and innovations, and although upheld by the Pope was forced to found a new order, the Sisters of the Good Shepherd, which spread throughout the world and was introduced in the United States in 1843. She died in 1868.

Gemma Galgani, the daughter of a pharmacist, was born in Lucca, Italy, in 1878, and was reported to have had heavenly visions as a child. Her biographers relate that the stigmas appeared in her side, hands and forehead in 1899. She died in 1903, and has been known since then as the Virgin of Lucca.

Both women were beatified by Pope Pius XI in 1933 on the basis of healings attributed to their intercession.

Runnells Checks Barred at Banks

AUGUSTA, Me., May 2—Banks throughout Maine today were handed a gubernatorial order not to cash any checks payable to the state treasurer, "no matter who the endorser might be."

Gov. Lewis O. Barrows said the order was a result of new revelations in an independent audit which already has unearthed shortages of $135,000 in accounts handled by resigned Controller William A. Runnells.

At the same time investigators for Atty.-Gen. Franz U. Burkett delved into ERA contracts in which more than $18,000,000 was spent during the early days of the New Deal. Auditors reported they have been unable to find hundreds of checks showing to whom money was paid.

He added that all such checks must be deposited to the state's account by the state treasurer.

The state charges, in an equity action intended to prove its claim to holdings of Runnells and his family, that he converted to his own use $82,000 in inter-departmental checks, most of them cashed for him in the treasurer's office, and $53,000 in highway department garage revenues.

Prisoner Robbed Right in Prison

WASHINGTON, May 2 (AP)—Even Uncle Sam's prisons aren't safe from robbers, it was disclosed today.

The jewelry was deposited with prison officials in 1931 when Kames started a ten-year sentence. Several years later, when Kames was paroled, it was discovered that another prisoner, a trusty, had obtained the jewelry on a forged order.

Kames now lives in Greece.

Parolee Goes Back to Jail As Gas Thief

Out of state prison as a paroled burglar less than three months, Wesley E. Fanion, 30, of Temple st., West Roxbury, went back into a cell today after appearing in Newton court as an alleged gasoline thief.

Fanion was captured at gunpoint the night of April 24 by two Newton policemen who said they caught him stealing gasoline from a pump in a gravel pit in Wiswall rd., and placing it in a car stolen that same night in West Roxbury.

After he had pleaded not guilty, Judge Donald E. Mayberry asked him what he was doing in the gravel pit.

"I was hunting," said Fanion.

"What do you hunt for down there?" pressed the judge.

"Oh, anything."

"Well, you've found it," the judge commented.

He sentenced Fanion to six months in the House of Correction.

Meanwhile Boston police hold a warrant, charging Fanion with stealing the car, and he faces a return to prison for a violation of parole.

Teeth in Throat, Pantomimes Flight

SPRINGFIELD, May 2—Many a true word has been spoken through false teeth, yet it remained for Henry C. Mulligan, 59, of Saratoga street to solve his oral troubles with a pantomime act reminiscent of the "keystone cops" of bygone cinema days.

Mulligan inhaled too deeply of the warm spring air and loosened a bridge of teeth which lodged in his throat. He raced in his car to the police station, where officers guessed at his plight from his gestures and took him to Mercy Hospital for removal of the offending teeth.

Mannos to Battle Insurance Probers

Paul Mannos, president of the bankrupt Canton Mutual Liability Insurance Co., sought for the last three months, will appear at further hearings before a special legislative commission on May 10, it was assured today.

The missing insurance official showed up at the State House in time to hear Samuel Cooper of Cambridge tell of his own promotion from a $25-a-week job as shipping clerk in a paint warehouse to the presidency of the Beacon Insurance Agency.

The agency in two years did a business of $1,400,000, Cooper said, although his pay remained at $25. Along with the new position, the witness testified he was offered a job with the Canton firm.

MANNOS SUMMONED

Mannos, who also was assistant treasurer of the Beacon Agency, was served with a summons and told to bring company records to the May 10 hearing.

Cooper told the probers that Mannos was owner of the paint warehouse and that the offer of the insurance jobs had come from him.

Manuel Nizol, an accountant who served as treasurer of the Beacon company, testified the directors' meetings of the company were perfunctory.

"Sam would come in with the matters on hand," he said, "and a vote would be taken."

SEEK RECORDS

It was disclosed at the hearing that dissatisfaction with books and records of the Beacon Insurance Agency turned over thus far has been expressed by commission members, and that the commission has asked Commissioner Harrington to obtain further records.

Meanwhile at the hearing Atty. Edward Dalton, counsel for three witnesses summoned to appear for questioning, protested to the commission against having them sworn, on the grounds the commission had no authority to swear them.

Despite the objection, however, the witnesses were given the oath and testified they all secured their jobs with the Beacon Agency through Mannos.

WORK FOR MANNOS

The three witnesses were the former shipping clerk, Cooper, Manuel Hinel of Broad st., treasurer of the company, and Evelyn Entis of Glenway st., Dorchester, clerk and director.

All three testified they did whatever Mannos ordered them to do and that they had been employed by him before their association with the Beacon Agency.

Cooper, asked several times just what his duties were, answered each time:

"I don't remember; I don't recall; it's so long ago."

SEN. CLARK HITS SALE OF PLANES

By ARTHUR HACHTEN

Special to Boston Evening American

WASHINGTON, May 2—Branding the Roosevelt administration's policy of releasing American-made planes for purchase by foreign governments as "outrageous," Sen. Bennett Champ Clark (D.) of Missouri, today served notice he will fight the program on the Senate floor.

Clark disclosed in an exclusive interview that he would open fire on the policy when the annual military appropriation bill for the War Department is considered by the Senate shortly. This measure, already passed by the House, is now before a Senate appropriations subcommittee.

U. S. FLIERS SUPPLIED

Gen. George C. Marshall, chief of staff, at today's secret hearing on the bill, was said to have given assurance the administration's policy to expedite sales of planes to Great Britain and France would not interfere with needs of the American army and navy. A committee member quoted him as saying the army air corps would receive 3000 new fighting planes by July 1, 1941.

Gen. Marshall's testimony, however, failed to extinguish charges in Congress that America's plane-production facilities were being turned over to the Allies; that there would be delays in delivery of planes to the army and navy and that American military secrets were being given to the Allies—secrets, it was claimed, that would become known to the world as planes are shot down by the Germans.

"The Administration's policy is outrageous," Clark asserted. "I don't believe that the army and navy are for this policy. It is outrageous for our government to be turning over the late types of planes to any foreign government. Of course, these foreign countries want our planes. They are the best planes in the world.

"We ought to be holding onto our inventions for speed and other purposes for our own possible use. We have the best bomb sight in the world. But I would not be surprised if the Allies get that pretty soon under the policy now prevailing."

POLICY PREDATES WAR

The Administration's policy to aid the Allies dates back months before the European war began, Clark said, adding:

"Secretary of the Treasury Morgenthau was put in charge of the program by the President months before the war started. The President is commander-in-chief of the armed forces and the officers of the army and navy are good soldiers. They obey orders."

The Senate appropriations subcommittee was expected to sift the Administration's plane-release policy at today's session, with Sen. Henry Cabot Lodge (R.) of Massachusetts, firing a broadside of questions designed to make certain that the needs of the American army and navy are not sidetracked by the Administration's policy to expedite deliveries to foreign countries.

Frequent or scanty passages with smarting and burning sometimes shows there is something wrong with your kidneys or bladder.

Don't wait! Ask your druggist for Doan's Pills, used successfully by millions for over 40 years. They give happy relief and will help the 15 miles of kidney tubes flush out poisonous waste from your blood. Get Doan's Pills.

Yugoslavia's Safety Guaranteed by Italy

ROME, May 2 (AP)—Foreign Minister Count Galeazzo Ciano today assured United States Ambassador William Phillips that Yugoslavia, Italy's neighbor on the Adriatic, was safe from Italian invasion, it was reported in usually reliable quarters.

The United States ambassador's talks with Premier Mussolini yesterday and with Ciano today noticeably eased tension in diplomatic circles.

Anxiety had reached an acute point with the announcement that British shipping had been diverted from the Mediterranean as a precaution.

TALKS WITH CIANO

Phillips' visit to Ciano was his second in two days. The ambassador called at the foreign ministry yesterday after seeing Mussolini and, it is said, received assurances from Il Duce that Italy did not plan any war move for the present.

Although nothing was made known at the American embassy, it was said in political circles that Germany wanted to keep all Balkan countries, including Yugoslavia, at peace as sources of supply for the Nazis.

It was explained that Italy, as an ally of Germany, would adhere to this policy which she has followed since the outbreak of the war.

TENSION DECREASES

Yugoslav circles were said to feel reassured and Allied circles also showed signs of an easier attitude.

Premier Mussolini himself was understood to have given the American envoy yesterday the clear impression that Italy would make no war move within the next 10 days at least.

There was an impression that the future of Italy's non-belligerent policy after that was less certain, although it seemed to depend on the turn that events might take elsewhere.

Paris Still Convinced Duce to Enter War

PARIS, May 2 (INS)—The French press today lauded the action of United States Ambassador William Phillips in asking Premier Mussolini for a clear expression of his military intentions, but informed circles in Paris remained convinced that Il Duce has "made up his mind" to enter the war.

Genevieve Tabouis, the French commentator, said:

"Nothing occurred yesterday to modify in any way the Italian situation as regards the Allies."

The Paris-Midi, however, was more optimistic regarding Mussolini's aims.

"One fact stands out," the newspaper said in an editorial, "and this is Il Duce's declaration to the American ambassador that there will be no sudden modification of the present status. Let us put the accent on sudden."

ILE DE FRANCE SAILS WITH GIRL PASSENGER

NEW YORK, May 2 (AP)—A pretty girl, waving a dainty handkerchief from decks loaded with warplanes, put a dash of peacetime gaiety into the sailing of the Ile de France, the great French liner which plowed the Atlantic today toward some belligerent port.

Three thousand well-wishers were stirred to voluble delight when a shapely brunette in blue appeared on the liner's bridge and waved adieu as the ship departed from Ile Staten Island pier.

Loaded with copper ingots, brass bars, oil and crted airplanes, the "Eel" carried two passengers, whose names were not disclosed but who were described as a member of a French purchasing commission and his 16-year-old daughter.

Capt. Herbert Fontaine, who brought the vessel in to New York last Sept. 8, was in command as the "floating art gallery"—now stripped of her luxurious furnishings—set out on her first mission since the war began.

The ship's destination was veiled in secrecy. Some thought she might sail to Halifax, there to trans-ship her cargo and then head for Australia for troop transport duty.

BRITISH SCUTTLE WARSHIP

LONDON, May 2 (INS)—The first scuttling of a British naval vessel since the outbreak of war was officially announced today.

The ship was the 1109-ton escort vessel Bittern. An announcement said:

"She was sunk by our own forces to avoid danger to navigation after she was set on fire by enemy bombers, one of which she shot down in flames."

Scene of the sinking was not made known, but it was assumed to be in Norwegian waters.

(Editor's Note—J. Norman Lodge, Associated Press correspondent, in a dispatch from Namsos yesterday reported the sinking of the Bittern, but said it was due to Nazi bombers, two of which sacrificed themselves to let the third score the hits. Lodge said the sinking took place in Namsos fjord.)

The admiralty also announced the minesweeper Dunoon had been mined and sunk and that three officers and 24 ratings were missing and feared lost.

Forty survivors—seven of them injured—were rescued and brought ashore. They said the 27 missing men apparently were killed when a mine shattered the forepart of the Dunoon.

British Again Raid Nazi Bases

LONDON, May 2 (INS)—A new British air raid against Germanheld bases in Norway and Denmark was announced officially today.

The announcement stated Royal Air Force planes heavily bombed German air bases at Stavanger and Fornebu, in Norway, and at Aalborg, Denmark, during the night.

In addition, it was stated, British planes also bombed Stavanger twice during the daylight hours of yesterday.

Earlier reports reached London of what may have been a battle between planes and ships off the east coast of England during the night.

Nazis Say British Retreat Near Rout

Trondheim have assumed the pursuit stage.

"The British are precipitately in rout and are abandoning the Andalsnes region.

"An inestimable amount of British stores has been captured by German troops at Dombas, whose advance guard has already reached a point 40 kilometers (24 miles) southeast of Andalsnes.

"There, 300 Norwegians who still resisted in an effort to cover the British retreat have been taken prisoner.

CLAIM RAIL LINE TAKEN

"The undestroyed railway line between Dombas and Elsberg south of Trondheim is now completely in German hands.

"German troops advancing from Bergen south and east met and joined hands with German troops from Oslo along the Oslo-Bergen railway line.

"British prisoners and booty are increasing steadily.

"There were no particular events at Narvik and Trondheim. Our air force continued successful devastation, carrying out annihilating attacks on enemy landing places. Near Narvik, enemy batteries were attacked.

"Further losses were inflicted on enemy naval forces. One cruiser was hit aft, causing a fire and detonations. One British merchantman was sunk and six others heavily damaged. Six British planes were shot down.

"There were no particular events on the Western Front."

Informed German circles said that the British and Norwegians are entirely without communications and that their debacle is as great an organizational as a military one.

These quarters compared the Norwegian campaign with the ill-starred Gallipoli venture of the World War, predicting that the ultimate effect upon British and neutral morale will exceed that of 1915.

Expanding the communique, military authorities announced that German troops operating northwest of Oslo have gained considerable ground and reached Sognefjord.

The fourth Norwegian division, which surrendered in the Valdres area, it was said, numbers 709 officers and 3200 men, with 2280 horses, three mountain field-guns and 85 machine-guns.

Before abandoning Dombas, these quarters claimed, the British made a last stand near Klevsen, but were routed.

NAZI CONVOY SHIPS RAIDED

By STEN HEDMAN
International News Service Staff Correspondent

STOCKHOLM, May 2 (INS)—Apparently sinking one German vessel and setting another on fire, combined British naval and aerial forces raided German troop transports and supply ships in the Kattegat today in a renewed effort to cut the Reich's sea communications with Norway.

Points along the west coast of Sweden reported that a heavy battle was in progress and that cannonading that lasted two hours had been heard.

Two or three convoys, apparently German troop ships and supply vessels escorted by Reich warships, were dispersed, according to reports from Gothenburg and other centers along the coast.

One report said that "several ships" were sunk during the activity in the Kattegat, where the fighting took place under cover of darkness. This report, emanating from Gothenburg, was not confirmed.

Furniture with a FUTURE

I believe that when you buy for your home, you are not buying for a season or a year, BUT for the future as well as the present.

That is why we sell only those things which we find, after careful inspection, to be substantially constructed in every detail. We look for solidity as well as style, for service as well as smartness and we will not sell merchandise which we know to be poorly made no matter how good it looks.

We want to sell you only furniture about which we can sincerely say to you: This will serve you well . . . now, and in the future.

ALLIED WAR FLEET HEADING FOR EGYPT

One store ship had been sunk by torpedoing, he said.

"We decided last week that we must abandon any idea of taking Thondheim from the south," Chamberlain said, "and must withdraw our troops and transfer them elsewhere.

"We have now withdrawn the whole of our forces from Andalsnes without losing a single man."

"Casualties have not been heavy in proportion to the operation," he said.

REVEALS NAZI PLANNING

Chamberlain's disclosure came in the course of an interim report on the Norwegian campaign.

Early in his report to an anxious and critical house Chamberlain asserted Germany had forestalled Britain in Norway by "long planning and carefully elaborated treachery."

He disclosed that allied forces had been gathered originally to help Finland, but these were dispersed when Norway and Sweden refused to allow transit of the troops.

About a month ago, however, he said, it was decided to keep ready "certain small forces" to occupy western ports of Norway at short notice in case of invasion by Germany of the Northern Kingdom.

It was before an anxious and critical House and a packed diplomatic gallery that the prime minister began his second report on the Norwegian campaign.

TELLS OF TREACHERY

"I can only make an interim statement today," he began, adding that it "is impossible to make public as yet the plans and movements which are not complete."

Chamberlain said he hoped "the first lord of the admiralty (Winston Churchill) and I may be able to say a good deal more early next week."

"I know how many must have been longing for news even of the most meager description," he went on. "But members have realized the difficulty of making any such statement without disclosing information of value to the enemy."

"How was it Germany was able to forestall us?" Chamberlain asked. "By long planning and carefully elaborated treachery against an unsuspecting and almost unarmed people."

The prime minister disclosed that when Britain made ready for dispatch of an allied force to Finland's aid she took into account the possibility that Germany might attack Norway's "western ports."

After permission to send troops to Finland through Norway and Sweden was refused, he said, the greater part of the forces which had been accumulated were dispersed, since both they and the ships were wanted elsewhere.

About a month ago, however, it was decided that certain small forces should be kept in readiness to occupy Norwegian western ports at short notice in case of aggression by Germany against southern Norway, Chamberlain said.

"Accordingly further forces were made ready to occupy these places," he declared.

He said instructions to the commanders of these forces provided they were to proceed to the occupation only under "one of two conditions—either that they were invited to do so by the Norwegian Government or that Norwegian neutrality had already been violated."

The Prime Minister declared Britain "had been aware for many months that the Germans were accumulating transports and troops in Baltic ports and that these troops were constantly being practiced in embarkation and disembarkation."

NEEDED CO-OPERATION

"It was evident some act of aggression was in contemplation," Chamberlain said. "But these forces were equally available for attack upon Finland, Sweden, Norway, Holland or this country and it was impossible to tell beforehand where the blow would fall," he added.

"If we had known that Denmark and Norway were to be the victims we could not have prevented what happened without the co-operation of those countries."

Those countries took no precautions against invasion "in the belief that their neutrality" would save them, the Prime Minister asserted.

Referring to British mine-laying in Norwegian waters, Chamberlain said "it was a curious chance that this date of April 8 decided upon by the government should have coincided almost exactly with that chosen by Germany for the invasion of Norway."

Chamberlain related how, after "we got information on Sunday, April 7, that a large German naval force was moving toward and along the west coast of Norway," the main battle fleet and second cruiser squadron sailed from Scapa Flow and Rosyth "in the hope of engaging the enemy."

He continued:

"Our objectives in deciding on further action were:

"1—To give all support and assistance in our power to the Norwegians.

"2—To resist or delay the German advance from the south.

"3—To facilitate the rescue and protection of the Norwegian King and government."

Amid rousing cheers, he explained that it was obvious these objectives could be most speedily attained if it were possible to capture Trondheim and, in spite of the hazardous nature of the operation, "we resolved to make the effort."

"Two landing places were selected, respectively north and south of Trondheim," he reported.

British naval forces landed at Namsos, 100 miles north of Trondheim, on April 14, and British troops followed April 16 to 18.

A few days later, French "chasseurs Alpins" landed and their arrival was "a welcome support to our men," the prime minister said.

TROOPS FOUGHT GALLANTRY

Part of this force advanced rapidly to the neighborhood of Steinkjer midway between Namsos and Trondheim, to support Norwegians known to be holding that place.

Chamberlain declared he could not give any details of fighting on both fronts since the landings.

"All that can be said at present is that our troops fought with gallantry and determination and inflicted heavy losses upon the enemy," he told the House.

Chamberlain acknowledged that Allied forces were faced with "serious difficulties" and described as "foremost" the fact that available airdromes were in German hands and "the use of fighter aircraft was thus largely denied to us."

The prime minister said that "it became evident to us some days ago that it would be impossible, owing to German local air superiority, to land the artillery and tanks which would be necessary to enable our troops to withstand the enemy drive from the south.

TROOPS WITHDRAWN

"Accordingly we decided last week that we must abandon any idea of taking Trondheim from the south and that we must withdraw our troops from that area and transfer them elsewhere.

"We have now withdrawn the hole of our forces from Andalsnes under very noses of the German airplanes."

Chamberlain said he hoped "and I have some reason to believe" the British casualties "have not been heavy in proportion to the scale of operation."

CIRCUS OPENS AT GARDEN

Crash of bands, glitter of spangles roar of lions, shouts of vendors—all the bustle and noise and thrill and color of the Greatest Show on Earth—filled Boston Garden today as the Ringling Brothers, Barnum & Bailey circus made its 1940 New England bow.

It was circus day again, circus day not under canvas as of yore but in an ultra-modern indoor setting, unmatched in history.

Even in the long ago centuries when ancient Rome ruled the world, all the extravagance and power of Nero and Caligulas couldn't stage such a spectacle.

MAZE OF EQUIPMENT

For today's big show opened at the Garden by virtue of scientific miracles of organization, transportation and mechanization.

Tested and in place when the huge massed circus band struck up its initial strains was a half-million-dollar maze of aerial equipment, much of which was unloaded from the Ringling Brothers special train a few short hours previously.

The circus animals, including the greatest wild beast array ever brought to Boston paraded, performed or paced their cages thanks to such handling and care and training as was never lavished on the fierce and costly creatures, the Roman emperors kept penned in the subterranean depths of the Colosseum.

GARGANTUA IS BACK

Gargantua, the huge, 525-pound Ringling show gorilla, glared ferociously at gaping crowds from a $33,000, glass walled and air-conditioned cage.

And he was here and in good health again only because he received recent medical attention no despot of old could command.

Threatened with pneumonia, when he and the circus left New York, Gargantua was nursed back to normalcy with 16 tanks of oxygen, a bushel of pills and a couple of gallons of castor oil.

Newest and most sensational attraction the circus presented today was the lion-tiger-bear-panther act staged in three rings simultaneously by Alfred Court and his assistants, May and Harry Kovar.

Slim and youthful May Kovar, No. 1 Girl Heroine of the Big Top since Mabel Stark's man-eating tigers mauled her for the last time, was on hand to see her animals safely moved into the Garden.

"The old days of handling the big cats with guns and steel prods and chair legs are outmoded now," Miss Kovar said.

MUST THINK QUICKLY

"We put our animals through their act by mental dominance, by thinking quicker than they, by being quicker and smarter and more alert.

"Accidents will happen, such as the time the pedestal used by Romeo, my bad' lion, was set on uneven ground. It tipped as Romeo made his usual leap over my head. He lost his footing on the take-off and landed square on my head and shoulders.

"We went down in a heap, me underneath with the breath squeezed out of me. But my mouth was right at the big lion's ear. I shouted the order for the next move of the act, as loud as I could.

"Romeo automatically moved to his place, leaving me unharmed. He couldn't think fast enough to do anything else, even though he has a mean disposition and is considered very dangerous.

"In fits of temper, he has killed five other animals, including two hyenas, one leopard and two tigers."

CIRCUS TUNE UP—Clayton Chase, dimunitive circus clown, aids his fellow funnyman, Frank Saluto, with his makeup as the "greatest show on earth" hits Boston . . . taking to the three rings in Boston Garden today.

146 Youths Quizzed On Hub Blackout

South Boston police questioned six youths today in their investigation of vandalism which upset a Boy Scout pageant at the South Boston Stadium and left a crowd of 10,000 persons, including Gov. Saltonstall, in the dark.

Shortly before the program, arranged by the Alpha Phi Omega fraternity, was scheduled to start, vandals smashed a generator in the center of the stadium, cutting off the electric supply for lights and public address system.

Despite the semi-darkness and confusion Gov. Saltonstall waved to the crowd and shook hands with hundreds of Scouts. He spent considerable time signing autograph books by the score. Because the amplifier system could not operate, he did not try to deliver his prepared speech.

The lack of lights was partly made up by motorists who drove their automobiles on the field with headlights shining undimmed, and by Fire Chief William J. Quigley, who supplied some of the fire department's flood lights.

But the attempt to use the police department's "sound car" for speechmaking purposes was a failure.

Gov. Saltonstall was introduced to the assemblage by Roger B. Hallowell, chairman of camping and activities of the Boston Council of Boy Scouts. On leaving the stadium the Governor was cheered as police broke through lines of spectators to escort him to his car.

WPA ASKS FOR MORE POWER

WASHINGTON, May 2 (AP)—The WPA has asked Congress, well-informed legislators said today, to give it greater leeway in the size and type of projects which it can undertake with relief funds.

Members of the House Appropriations sub-committee considering President Roosevelt's relief estimates said that the requested revisions include:

1—Restoration of the Federal theater projects where local sponsorship can be obtained.

2—Removal of the $52,000 limit on the cost of construction projects.

3—Elimination of the requirement that local sponsors contribute 25 per cent of the cost of all non-federal projects.

4—Reduction to 15 days of the enforced lay-off period for all persons continuously on the WPA rolls for 18 months.

Pal Condoned Love Affair

PROVIDENCE, May 2—Dutee W. Flint made no attempt to argue Samuel M. Nicholson out of his friendship for a glamorous woman named "Mary," it was revealed in testimony in his suit against the Nicholson estate for $1,000,000.

The suit was brought on the basis of a $1,000,000 note, allegedly signed by the late millionaire industrialist for "valuable services."

Edith a Carlson, Attleboro nurse, testified under cross examination that Flint had not protested over Nicholson's visits to "Mary," at a Providence hotel, in Havana and at a cottage in Newport.

Tech to Guard 'Rochester'

Bay State rd., Back Bay, was charged with assaulting Patrolman John Higgins.

It was during the celebration of a decisive M. I. T. victory over Harvard blitzkriegers that squads of police arrived on the battle ground, at Massachusetts ave. and Memorial Drive.

The officers and fire department arrived when a WPA work shed was dragged into the courtyard of the graduate dormitory and set afire, as the Harvard men, thrashed, beat a retreat, many of them stripped of their clothing.

INVADERS IN CLASH

The fracas started when about 75 of John Harvard's stalwarts descended on the Delta Kappa Epsilon fraternity house on Memorial drive, seeking revenge for the kidnaping of "Rochester" the previous evening.

Word of the invasion had leaked into Tech, however, and the Harvardians were met by a force of nearly 300 youths. At first the Tech boys were content to muss up their rivals a bit, but a cry of "Let's strip them" met with an enthusiastic reception.

Within 15 minutes at least 25 Crimson cohorts, utterly bereft of clothing, were dashing along Memorial Drive bent on beating pneumonia to their dormitories.

POLL CUTS F. D. THIRD TERM VOTE

By WILLIAM K. HUTCHINSON

WASHINGTON, May 2 (INS)—A California poll of registered voters today showed President Roosevelt is still the popular choice of Democrats for a third term, but that he would lose more than 10 per cent of the young if opposed by Thomas E. Dewey as the G. O. P. nominee.

The poll was taken by a prominent Democratic official among voters in San Francisco, Oakland and Sacramento—cities which the President swept in 1932 and 1936. The areas generally were Republican prior to the Roosevelt landslide of 1932, but have been staunchly Democratic since then.

In San Francisco, the Democratic revolt against a third term was pronounced. The poll showed 30 per cent of the interviewed Democrats would vote for Dewey over the President. In the Oakland area, the poll indicated the President would lose 13 per cent of his 1936 following, while in Sacramento his third term loss would be from 9 to 12 per cent.

The poll was taken in friendly Roosevelt territory to determine the amount of popular opposition to a third term.

FORT WORTH, Tex., May 2 (INS)—President Roosevelt will make no announcement regarding a third term until just before—or possibly during—the National Democratic Convention in July, in the opinion today of his son, Elliott Roosevelt.

Young Roosevelt discussed the third term question in the first of a new series of tri-weekly Texas radio broadcasts last night, but disclaimed having any "inside information" as to his father's intentions.

Women Democrats Jam Capital Hotels

WASHINGTON, May 2 (AP)—More than 4000 Democratic women poured into town today, and the capital woke up to find a serious housing problem on its hands.

The ladies came to attend the first national institute of government under the auspices of the women's division of the Democratic national committee—and they came in unsuspected numbers.

Originally, about 500 were expected, but after that the advance registration skyrocketed to 4700.

Faced with the fact that the hotels may not be able to accommodate all the women, the national committee hastily figured out a doubling-up program.

HEARTS, HOMES OPENED

Members of the District of Columbia Democratic Club promised to open up their hearts and homes if any of the visitors are without shelter by sundown.

The housing crisis was by no means settled when Postmaster Farley, in a prepared address for the institute's opening session, felicitated the women on the part they have played in the party's activities since 1932.

Praising the record of the Roosevelt administration, he said:

"The Republican party has just paid us a great compliment. Being unable to work out a program of their own, they propose to appropriate what they like to call 'the best features' of the Democratic program.

"We propose to keep that program for ourselves. To borrow a phrase from the current war dispatches, we are deeply suspicious of Trojan horses and, I may add, the American public is likewise suspicious.

"The Republican effort to slip into power by donning the cloak of liberalism, a garment which has always been ill-fitting for the G. O. P., is too apparent to fool anyone."

Vice-Presidency Bid for LaGuardia

NEW YORK, May 2 (INS)—Mayor Fiorello H. LaGuardia's name will probably go before the Democratic national convention as a candidate for Vice-President.

Wm. G. Bowman, Democratic national committeeman from Arizona will sponsor presentation of the mayor's name it was learned. Arizona is Mayor LaGuardia's native state.

TOBIN AIDS IN SCHOOL COST CUT

Boston school committee members arranged a conference with Mayor Tobin today to discuss their budget difficulties.

To gain further helpful suggestions, the committee voted to invite representatives of taxpayers and teachers to speak at the next meeting on Monday.

The Board of Appointment has already suggested as ways of reducing the budget abolition of annual salary increases, curtailment of school activities and a cut of four and one half per cent.

F. R. HAILS COHAN AS 'DOUBLE'

WASHINGTON, May 2 (INS)—The President today decorated his "double." On the chest of George M. Cohan, author of "Over There"—the tune that took the A. E. F. to France and back in '17 and '18—the President pinned a medal authorized by Congress for his "patriotic services" 23 years after their performance.

"How's my double," asked President Roosevelt as the grand old man of the American stage entered his office.

The President was referring to Cohan's portrayal of the Chief Executive's role in "I'd Rather Be Right" two years ago—a satire which President Roosevelt saw and enjoyed.

Nineteen years after Cohan wrote "Over There," Congress in 1936 authorized the President to present Cohan a special gold medal in recognition of the writing of the theme song of first World War and also for "The Grand Old Flag," written in 1905.

GEORGE M. COHAN
Decorated by F. D. R.

Even after Congress delayed 19 years in recognizing his services, it took four more years for the medal to catch up with the actor. In 1938 the White House began corresponding with the stage star to set a date for the presentation, but it was delayed from time to time for various reasons.

And so today, because Cohan is in Washington with his latest show "The Return of the Vagabond," President Roosevelt was able to corral him.

Reporters asked Cohan when he was going to write his next patriotic song.

"I hope we never have to have another," he said earnestly. "But if we do, some young fellow will have to undertake the job."

B. C. PRAYS FOR PEACE

Boston College students attending May devotions today renewed their prayers for peace and protection of this country by the Blessed Virgin Mary.

The Morning After Taking Carter's Little Liver Pills

"I DIDN'T THINK A WEDDING RING IMPORTANT, BUT—

"THE man I loved for many secret years was called 'the most powerful politician in New York.'

"Perhaps you'll guess who he was. His downfall, trial and conviction were front page news.

"But there's no need to repeat his name. I bear him no malice. He gave me everything it is possible to give 'the other woman.' But that didn't include a wedding ring.

"Long before the tragic ending of our life together, I knew I had made an awful mistake. I had love, kindness, material things. But I didn't have what the wedding ring stands for—home, security, honor.

"I tell my story in the fervent hope that it may help others to learn from my bitter experience that the other woman never wins. I pray this may be so."

Politics on Parade

By BARRINGTON WELLES

John I. Fitzgerald of the West End and his Hendricks Club suffered their second major political defeat within five months when Rep. George Leary of that district succeeded in electing his own Democratic ward committee there on Tuesday.

For 50 years the Hendricks Club has controlled the Democratic committee of Ward 3. Then Leary skillfully picking his opposition slate, including 14 residents of South End, largest representation ever given that section of the ward, shattered tradition and elected his group.

So severe was the beating given the Fitzgerald slate that in Precinct 18 of the ward, located in Common st., in the theatrical district, the Leary forces prevailed by a margin of 10 to 1.

Leary, by his handling of the situation, proved himself one of the most astute of the younger politicians. Anticipating the difficulty encountered in other districts where citizens voted for an entire slate of 35 ward committee members and cast a ballot for a friend or two on an opposition slate, Leary placed only 31 names on his ticket. The result was that there were few Leary ballots nullified through error, although scores were outlawed elsewhere.

Fitzgerald, who was defeated for re-election to the city council last fall is petitioning for a recount of the votes cast for ward committee but friends say that he has little hope of changing the original tally.

City Councilor Michael J. Ward of Allston is greatly embarrassed by his defeat for election as a delegate to the Democratic national convention from the 10th congressional district.

And Martin J. Kelly of Jamaica Plain is greatly pleased by the mishap.

"Mike," convinced that he would be an easy victor, had permitted his friends to announce his candidacy for the Democratic nomination for Congress in the 10th district.

Kelly won the nomination two years ago and was defeated by the incumbent, Cong. George Holden Tinkham. Both he and his friends felt that he was entitled to a second try and that he should not be opposed in the primaries in order that he might husband his financial resources for the election campaign.

The Ward candidacy threatened to deprive them of the support of some of Mayor Tobin's friends, since both men helped put the present administration in power, to put them to great expense, and to endanger their prospect of victory in the primaries.

Now, say the Kelly supporters, Ward is no longer an outstanding contender, and his defeat of Tuesday may cause him to abandon his congressional ambitions.

You may remember that as recently as last Monday City Councillors John B. Kelly and John C. Wickes, both of Dorchester, were close friends. Well, "they aint what they used to be." Not since yesterday.

Kelly sought election as a district delegate to the Democratic National Convention from the Dorchester district. Victory seemed certain. Then the votes were counted Tuesday night and the winner was declared to be John T. McMorrow of Ward 17, the Wickes district.

Then somebody told Kelly that Wickes had supported McMorrow.

Kelly publicly endorsed the Wickes candidacy for Council last November. His brother, former Lieut. Gov. Francis E. Kelly, praised Wickes and urged his election. But now they are not friends any more.

"Mike" Ward cannot feel any worse about his defeat than Governor's Councilor Daniel H. Coakley feels about his victory. "Dan" was elected as a district delegate to the Democratic national convention from the ninth Congressional district.

He received 1272 votes, according to the original tabulation.

"Young Joe" Kennedy, Harvard student and son of America's ambassador to Britain, who was elected with Coakley, received 2451 votes while the two other victors, John P. Brennan and Mullowney received 2267 and 2002 ballots respectively. Friends say that "Dan" cannot explain the snub.

The practice of "bulleting" for an individual instead of voting for an entire slate of delegates wasn't confined to the Democrats. Scrutiny of the returns reveals that friends of Gov. Saltonstall and Sen. Henry Cabot Lodge, Jr., were not above a bit of practical politics Lodge, for example, collected 190 "bullets" in Beverly, his home town, but the governor's friends were more active and the final tally was Saltonstall 66,662 votes to 60,505 for the junior senator.

If it is true that State Auditor Russell Wood boasted at a dinner tendered recently to a Democrat holding public office in Boston that he has put many Democrats to work in the past 13 months, he may live to regret his statement.

A movement is now under way in Boston to have Wood defeated at the Republican primaries because of that allegation. City Councillor Perlie Dyar Chase of Back Bay, long a campaigner against beano and Communism, is being groomed to upset Wood.

Persons who declare that Wood did make such a statement say that prominent Republicans, including chairmen of some Boston ward committees, could get only laborers ratings while Democrats got "white collar" jobs.

N. E. 'REBIRTH' IS SEEN

WORCESTER, May 2—Industrial "rebirth" for New England, with still more new industries following recent arrivals to this section, was predicted by John F. Tinsley, president of Associated Industries of Massachusetts at the annual convention of the American Society of Mechanical Engineers.

SUSAN HAYWARD'S assignment to a role in Paramount's "The Little Broadcast," is protested by Louella O. Parsons in her Hollywood column today.

Hollywood Paragraphs

By LOUELLA O. PARSONS

HOLLYWOOD, May 2—Personally I think Paramount has a young Bette Davis in Susan Hayward, so that is why I am going to quarrel with them about putting Susie in a college rah-rah opus, "The Little Broadcast." For my money this Hayward girl has more dramatic talent than any girl of her age in Hollywood. Everyone was impressed with her in New York and Chicago when we were on our personal appearance tour.

Of course, Susie is young—but with the right parts she should go a long way.

Errol Flynn was exactly like a two-year-old when he telephoned to tell me that his Rhodesian ridgebacks had won three cups—and nine ribbons at the Beverly Hills dog show. I was happy, too, for the cups were won by Tillie's parents. She is the two months-old lion dog (as this breed is called) which Errol gave me and she has captivated my entire household.

Errol has the only kennel of Rhodesians in America. He bought the female in Africa, the male in England and is raising their offsprings in America.

Edward Everett Horton Comes to Wilbur Next Monday

LOVE, AH LOVE—Jack (Buck) Benny appears smitten between the eyes by Ellen Drew's beauty in the scene from "Buck Benny Rides Again," opening today at the Metropolitan.

Raye and Davis In Shubert Show

Nan Raye and Maude Davis, the inquiring reporter girls who were yanked from smalltime to appear in "The Straw Hat Revue" and then thrust into "Follies Bergere" are now operating under a "run of the play" contract with "Keep Off the Grass," the new musical at the Shubert.

'Virginia City' For Olympia

"Virginia City," story of the West's richest, toughest town, co-starring Errol Flynn Miriam Hopkins and Randolph Scott, moves to Washington St. Olympia screen starting Saturday. The second feature, "The Ghost Comes Home," features Frank Morgan, Billie Burke and Ann Rutherford.

Star Portrays Merry Role

Edward Everett Horton, in "Springtime for Henry," will come to the Wilbur Theater for two weeks, beginning Monday. Matinees will be given on Wednesday and Saturday.

Mr. Horton and "Springtime for Henry" are sponsored by Laurence Rivers, producer of "The Green Pastures," "The Pursuit of Happiness," "White Horse Inn" and other Broadway hits.

The tour, which is nationwide, was opened last Oct. 18 at the historic Ford's Theater, Baltimore, following its rehearsals in New York under the supervision of Miriam Doyle, chief director and vice-president of Laurence Rivers, Inc. Since then it has played many leading cities, including Chicago, where it ran for eight sell-out weeks, Havana and 14 cities in Florida.

Built strictly for laughs, there is never a serious moment, nor a dull one, in "Springtime for Henry," which is regarded as one of the finest works of Benn W. Levy, author of "Art and Mrs. Bottle," "The Devil Passes," "Mrs. Moonlight" and many other stage and screen successes.

Entirely different from the "milk toast" parts with which the public associates him Mr. Horton is the worldly man-about-town in one of the spiciest plays that ever enjoyed successful runs in New York and London.

Twin Screens Get 'Rebecca'

"Rebecca," the David O. Selznick pictuization of the Daphne du Maurier novel, will set a new record by holding over a sixth week, beginning today, at New York's Radio City Music Hall, tomorrow opens a week's run on the Scollay and Modern screens.

Stars of "Rebecca" are Laurence Olivier, Joan Fontaine, Judith Anderson and George Sanders.

It is the story of Manderley and its beautiful, deceased mistress, Rebecca, whose sinister shadow darkens the lives of Olivier and his lovely second wife, Joan Fontaine. "Rebecca" has been superbly directed by Alfred Hitchcock.

The second feature, "Charlie Chan in Panama," stars Sidney Toler, Jean Rogers and Lionel Atwill in another chapter in the popular Chan series.

Trans-Lux Bills 'Secret Agent'

"Secret Agent," Somerset Maugham's famous World War story, starring Madeleine Carroll, Robert Young, Peter Lorre, John Gielgud and Percy Marmont, may be seen on Trans-Lux screen, starting tomorrow.

The Maugham story concerns a young British officer, just back from the front, who reads his own death notice in a newspaper, learns he must undertake a secret mission to Switzerland under another name and destroy a German spy bound for Constantinople.

The co-feature will be "The Mystery of Edwin Drood," with Claude Rains, Heather Angel and David Manners.

'YOUNG TOM EDISON' HELD OVER SECOND WEEK AT LOEW'S

Mickey Rooney's Role Praised

"Young Tom Edison," with Mickey Rooney in his first biographical role, is continuing for a second week on Loew's State and Orpheum screens.

A young man, barely five years older than Mickey Rooney himself, served as advisor to the Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer star in his portrayal of Thomas Alva Edison as a boy in the picture, "Young Tom Edison."

The youth is Milton Miller 22 year-old nephew of Edison, and he was employed during preparation and production of the picture as biographical technical adviser. Miller's father, Lewis Miller, is a brother of Mrs. Mina M. Edison Hughes, widow of the famous inventor.

"Young Tom Edison" is the first of two pictures dealing with the life of the famous inventor. The second, "Edison, the Man," starring Spencer Tracy, will be released in June.

The companion feature is "Two Girls on Broadway," starring George Murphy, Lana Turner and Joan Blondell.

FAY BAINTER and Mickey Rooney have a little understanding in "Young Tom Edison," held over a second week at Loew's State and Orpheum.

WHILE states and nations abroad are dissipating their wealth and resources in futile programs of death and destruction, Massachusetts is commendably occupied with the saving of young lives.

That this is true will be readily seen by anyone who finds time to study the figures released Wednesday by the Commonwealth's Division of Vital Statistics.

Among other interesting things, they show that the number of infants who died within a year after birth during 1939 was 36.9 for each 1000 babies born alive—a drop of 2.2 over the previous year and the LOWEST INFANT MORTALITY RATE since the establishment of the Division.

TOMORROW'S HEALTHY AMERICAN
Less and Less, We Endanger His Life by Ignorance and Neglect

Really to appreciate this notable achievement, a person has only to consult the records of a quarter of a century ago, when ONE BABY IN EVERY NINE born in this State died before reaching its first birthday.

We say "notable achievement" advisedly, for as recently as 1915, infant mortality in Massachusetts was 101 per thousand births.

Year after year, the rate slowly decreased—91 in 1920, 73 in 1925, 60 in 1930 and now a gratifyingly low 36.9.

Mothers everywhere will find this progress heartening, and thousands will want to know the reason or reasons.

Heading the list of answers is the important fact that Bay State women no longer accept the miracle of birth as something that will take care of itself.

Thanks to intelligent education, carried forward in large part by newspapers, the average prospective mother SEES A DOCTOR AT ONCE.

For women of limited financial means there are many clinics and hospitals where the best of attention is given without cost.

No expectant mother, save one who is deliberately careless or foolishly optimistic, is obliged to risk her own and her unborn baby's safety by neglect.

EQUALLY IMPORTANT is the birth itself, whether it occurs at home or in a hospital.

Doctors, even the most unskilled, now place proper emphasis on SANITATION.

The old practice of a mid-wife's dropping one case to take up another, sometimes without troubling to change her clothing, is generally discouraged today.

Physicians, hospitals and nurses, registered or practical, all stress the absolute necessity of cleanliness.

As a result, maladies that have afflicted mothers and their offspring from earliest times are greatly decreased, though not entirely eliminated.

Moreover, the doctor has at his disposal numerous scientific devices, such as respirators, oxygen containers and laboratory preparations, which very often keep alive the spark of life that would have been allowed to flicker out a generation ago.

OUR GOAL of complete safety for every mother and her baby is not yet in sight. Ignorance, incompetence and bungling still obscure the horizon.

Our Legislature has failed to follow the leadership of more alert States which have written laws requiring premarital and prenatal medical examinations.

Mistakes by the medical fraternity are occasionally concealed by a perverted sense of loyalty to a brother practitioner which has been known to rise above the duty of the physician to his patient.

But we are headed in the RIGHT DIRECTION and making satisfactory progress.

Here, probably more than anywhere else in this wide world, a woman can go forward into life's greatest adventure with reasonable assurance of emerging alive.

Mrs. Eleanor Roosevelt -:- -:- MY DAY

WASHINGTON, May 2—Tuesday afternoon I received a number of diplomats and their wives. I cannot help feeling that this whole group has a serious and almost sad approach to any subject these days.

There is an uncertainty abroad in the world which makes those who are close to their governments and represent them in foreign lands, feel the seriousness and precariousness of life

IN THE EVENING I went to a dinner to celebrate the 40th anniversary of the founding of the Instructive Visiting Nurses Association in Washington.

Mrs. Harlan Fiske Stone has been the president since 1936 and a very hard working one. The people who gathered to do honor to her and the association, are interested in the well-being of Washington's large lower income bracket population.

I remember this work years ago, when my aunt, Mrs. William Sheffield Cowles, was interested in this organization. I think the founders and all those who worked in it in those early days, would be gratified at the increase of service which has come about in forty years.

After the dinner was over, I went to see Mrs. Morgenthau, who has not been very well and so was not able to attend, though she had done a great deal in making the arrangements for the dinner.

For some reason, the broadcast of the dinner was not heard in Washington, but a transcription was run off at 10:00 p. m. and Mrs. Morgenthau and I listened.

It is a curious sensation, sitting critically listening to yourself and realizing how unutterably slow and dull you sound. Somehow or other, I must learn to think more quickly on my feet, or I shall always spoil whatever impromptu program I am on. It is good for the soul to have an experience like this, but somewhat discouraging.

The President and I have just been presented with a painting called: "Rebirth of the Holy Land," by Arye Leo Peysack of Palestine. It is a very kind and charming gesture and both of us appreciate his thought.

ALL THESE kindly gestures from people of different races are, I think, the result of a feeling that so many of us have been drifting away from a kindliness of spirit in these days that those who desire better understanding and peace, try to emphasize anything which will draw us together.

I am glad to see that the Council Against Intolerance in America is calling a regional conference on tolerance through education on Saturday, May 11, in New York City. Some very distinguished educators are the sponsors.

Since the feeling of good will must be promoted through the schools, I think that this is an effort which should command our support.

SUDDEN DEATH for 11 young people in a two automobile head-on highway collision in Minnesota! The cars were going at such a terrific pace that some of the bodies were tossed 60 feet or more. When will every highway in America be a divided highway, which is insurance against head-on collisions. What becomes of all that gasoline tax money? Enough of that is collected to make every U. S. highway divided by day and illuminated by night.

I SAW ANN Sheridan in "It All Came True." She's good, especially when she sings. If I know what "oomph" is, and perhaps I don't, I would say Ann's "oomph" is in her voice. She needs a little instruction in how to use her eyes . . . All a man wants his clothes to do for him is to make him presentable, but a woman wants them TO DRIVE HER FRIENDS WILD WITH ENVY . . . "Clark Gable grins," says Interviewer Henry Pringle, "and reveals the dimples over which American women are mad." Why do women go mad over dimples? How many of the great male heart throbs of the films had dimples? Yes, I know, Maurice Costello. But who else? Did Valentino have dimples? Or Jack Gilbert?

Maybe some of the feminine sufferers from unrequited love don't want to be cured. Some women seem to enjoy having a broken heart.

FRANCHOT TONE ILL; UNDERSTUDY ACTS

By Leonard Lyons

NEW YORK, May 2—Kendall Clark, a young actor, had a dinner date Monday night with Mary Nash, a young actress. At 7 o'clock Miss Nash, who works as an understudy, in "Higher and Higher," received a wire from Clark, who works as an understudy in "The Fifth Column." The wire offered apologies for this last-minute cancellation of the dinner date, and promised full explanation after the show was over . . . At midnight, Clark explained—that he had been called to substitute for Franchot Tone, in the leading role, because Tone is ill. Miss Nash forgave Clark and informed him that she couldn't have kept the date anyway—for she had been called to substitute for Marta Eggert, in the leading role, because Miss Eggert was a victim of tonsilitis.

But to those of us who are challenging the fates by bringing children into this troubled world, who wish for them and for us and for all men to be free in heart and mind, it is more important to spread the news about "There Shall Be No Night," instead of that John Gunther startled NBC's news editor by receiving a fan telegram from Hedy Lamarr—yes, Hedy Lamarr.

HOLLYWOOD, May 2—Here comes John Steinbeck again! This time with "The Okies of Modern Mexico," a documentary film of the peons, landless and hungry. Steinbeck walks "where angels fear to tread," for Mexico has ever been unwilling to have anything but the most complimentary film versions made of her countrymen. Steinbeck, undaunted, thinks well enough of his new story to script it himself—a thing he didn't even do for "Grapes of Wrath" and "Of Mice and Men," two of his best controversial and most widely discussed novels.

I have an idea that he is financially interested in his Mexican opus. Herbert Kline, who produced "Lights Over Europe" and "The Crisis" made before the Munich putsch, is already in Mexico making arrangements for the movie to be produced at the Pan-American Studios. TWO-MINUTE STORY

AS THE TRAIN clicked along, Harry swayed gently with its motion. Once or twice as the car rounded a curve, he leaned up against the man beside him. When he had regained his former position he would resume his trend of thought.

In his mind's eye he saw how he would ring at the apartment door when he came back. It would fly open as though Helen had been waiting patiently behind it for him. She would be in his arms, clinging tight, saying over and over again in a tight, little voice, "Oh, Harry, Harry."

Then, he'd push her away gently and look her over. He'd smile down into her eyes.

"It's been a long time," he'd say. For a second, her eyes would cloud with solicitous care, then, abruptly, it would be brushed away like a wisp of hair hanging over her forehead.

"BUT YOU'RE BACK now, and that's all that matters," she'd answer him. He'd pick her up and carry her into the living room and dump her on the big sofa before the fire. There would be a big, roaring blaze in the fireplace.

It would be January when he'd return—he had already figured it out—and there was always a cheery fire to run the chill out of you in January.

When they were comfortable, she'd say, "Now, tell me all about it, dear boy"—they'd all want to know about it—then suddenly she'd realize he didn't want to tell anyone "all about it" . . . he didn't want to tell himself "all about it."

Quickly, she'd switch the subject to something else. Even though she would have written him faithfully every scrap of interest, she'd tell him about the old gang, how Sally Grad DID finally marry Horton after all, and that Miles had drunk himself into the grave, just as they all knew he'd do.

Then, little by little, the conversation would come around to themselves; the picnics they'd gone on in Klondill, just the two of them.

ABRUPTLY the harsh voice of the man beside him jogged in on his thoughts as the train slackened speed.

"There she is, son, the Rock, up there on the hill. Take a good look at that pile of stone. That's your home for the next eight years."

LISTEN, WORLD! By Elsie Robinson

THE DAYS are dark, defiled with cruelty. Justice seems crushed, and peace is a sad dream. We wonder, each of us, what lies ahead. We reach for something that will brace our souls.

And, over the long years, there comes the voice of an old king—King David of the Jews—as sore beset by doubt and darkness as we are today. Yet he could raise his voice and sing this song that, through the centuries, has steadied other men.

"I will lift up mine eyes unto the hills from whence cometh my help.

"He will not suffer thy foot to be moved; He that keepeth thee will not suffer.....the Lord is thy keeper; the Lord is thy shade upon thy right hands .....the Lord shall preserve thee from all evil; He shall preserve thy soul."

FEAR is about me in these dreadful days. Doubt and anger beset me. Horror dogs my heels. And man's brutality screams like a bloody lash on my stunned consciousness. Yet, far within me, there is a place of peace. Deep in my soul, as in other souls, there is a refuge which fear cannot invade nor horror defile.

FOR THERE IS SOMETHING WITHIN ME AND YOU WHICH IS STRONGER THAN FEAR AND WISER THAN HORROR.

My flesh may quake and my mind shudder. But there is a spark within all human hearts that knows no wavering—that is beyond all anger and doubt. There is a spark of God which will survive all nightmares—which cannot be defeated or destroyed.

"The Lord shall preserve thy going out and thy coming in from this time forth, and even forever more."

Life may bewilder me; men may deceive and abuse me; and I may turn traitor to myself. But there is one whose strength and loyalty will never fail me. I have not seen His face nor heard His voice, and yet I feel His presence like a living flame

"Nearer to me than breathing—
"Closer than hands or feet."

He moves within each thought and deed, a part of my abiding consciousness. And while He lives I shall live—for I, like all human beings, am part of Him.

THERE is a thought which my heart can grip in these confused days for although everything I have ever made may be destroyed, I know that my Father the creator of love, will walk with me to the very end of the trail . . . and the hills of His truth and beauty will shine forever above the dust and tears.

DELORES MOSHER
To Aid League

Girls to Aid Hub Mothers' Peace Rally

A group of girls and young women have volunteered to assist the American Mothers' Neutrality League in its plans for a "peace meeting," to be held at the Parkman bandstand on Boston Common on Mother's Day, Sunday, May 12.

The younger group will aid the mothers in obtaining signatures for petitions demanding that the United States be kept neutral in the European War and that American boys should not be sent overseas to fight for foreign nations. Among the leaders in the group is Dolores Mosher of Hyde Park.

The group is being organized from various sections of Greater Boston. American Mothers' Neutrality League, with a membership of 18,000, is organized throughout the statue under congressional districts.

Members of the league from other New England states, as well as from all sections of Massachusetts, will attend the peace meeting. They will be augmented by representatives from veterans, civic, patriotic and other organizations.

All congressmen from Massachusetts, as well as Sens. Walsh and Lodge, are being invited to attend the meeting. One of the principal speakers will be Cong. Hamilton Fish of New York, recognized as a leader in the fight against subversive activities.

Several ministers have become interested in the meeting and are expected to attend and bring large delegations.

Mrs. Loretta M. Petze of Weymouth is chairman of the committee in charge, Mrs. Grace Sholes of Malden is vice-chairman and Mrs. Elizabeth Feeley of Roslindale, secretary.

Brakes O.K.? Well She Shows 'Em!

Registry of Motor Vehicle officials were satisfied today that there is nothing wrong with the brakes on the car of Mrs. Mary Farrell, 46, of Lowell.

Hailed by an inspector in Methuen for a routine examination of equipment, Mrs. Farrell jammed on the brakes so suddenly that the machine turned turtle. She suffered only slight injuries.

GIRL QUIZZED ON BRIDGE RESCUE

A pretty 26-year-old girl, who missed death by inches when she fell from a foot bridge over the Boston & Maine Railroad tracks near Grove st., West Medford, then failed to explain to police how the near-accident happened, was questioned today at Boston Psychopathic Hospital.

Police said she gave the name of Ruth Eno of 61st., Queens, N. Y., on a visit to friends in Monument st., West Medford.

She was first seen by R. S. Morgan, engineer of a passenger train headed for Lowell, as his locomotive sped under the bridge. The girl was hanging over the tracks, he said, clutching the bridge with her hands.

The train was pulled to an abrupt stop and when members of the crew ran back to the bridge to investigate, they found the girl lying on the track, police said. She suffered numerous leg and body bruises.

Officers who questioned Miss Eno reported that she appeared dazed from the plunge and was unable to give a clear account of the mishap. Later, police said, she told City Physician Paul Goodwin of Medford that she had undergone treatment for a nervous breakdown.

THIS is a rolled pot-roast made from a cut of chuck beef from which the bone has been removed and the meat rolled and tied. Served with cabbage wedges, it makes a good main dish.

Beef Pot-Roast Popular

By MARTHA LEE

A BEEF pot-roast is one of the favorite main dishes in the average American home, and many and delicious are the menus built around it.

Pot-roast of beef is appetizing and nutritious. The lean portions are a source of high quality protein, so necessary in the diet both of adults and children, and the fat supplies energy. It is economical, for the less demanded cuts can be cooked successfully by this method, braising.

To take full advantage of these good qualities of beef pot-roast, the wise homemaker takes care first of all to master the basic cooking method, so that the meat will be most tender and fine in flavor. Then she will learn which cuts best suit her purpose, so that she can buy thriftily.

For variety she will select different vegetables and combination of vegetables to cook with the meat.

The meat dish illustrated is a rolled pot-roast. The bone has been removed from a cut from the chuck of beef, and the meat rolled and tied. Cuts from the rump and the heel of the round are also fine for pot-roasts. Thin layers of fat are often wrapped around pot-roasts, as is the case with the one shown here. This adds to the appearance and also the flavor.

COOKING A POT-ROAST

In cooking, the pot-roast is first browned on all sides in hot lard. It may be dredged with flour, if you choose. Then it is seasoned, a small amount of water is added and the meat is closely covered so that it will cook chiefly by steam. A heavy utensil, to hold a steady heat, is best for cooking a pot-roast. The cover should fit tightly. Cook the meat at a temperature low enough so that the liquid simmers but does not boil. Allow plenty of time for the meat to cook well. A pot-roast of four or five pounds will require about three hours. If the liquid cooks away, add more, a little at a time.

Add the cabbage wedges just long enough before the end of the cooking time so that they are done but not overcooked when the meat is ready to serve.

One of the good features of a pot-roast is the delicious gravy to be made by thickening the liquid in the kettle.

SEASONINGS FOR VARIETY

There are many ways of varying the flavor of pot-roast. Different kinds of liquid can be used. Spices can be added. A variety of vegetables can be cooked with it.

Tomato juice adds tastiness if used as the liquid. A mixture of water, Worcestershire sauce and chili sauce may also be used. Or you might like the flavor obtained by pouring half of a small bottle or horseradish over the meat, after it has been browned.

TOO MANY PEOPLE Opera means a grand aggregation of highfalutin' foreign stars and wealthy ladies and gentlemen in lavish evening clothes and jewelry . . . yet we have an opera star right here in Boston who is anything but highfalutin' . . .

Mimi Chase, who has appeared in the famous Metropolitan Opera's Boston productions for the past few years, is extremely modest and has nothing to say about the whole thing . . . Mimi is a Sealyham pup which belongs to Mrs. Anita Davis-Chase and every time an opera script calls for a dog Mimi gets the job and trots quietly about the stage like the professional trouper she is . . .

For every performance she receives a dollar, which makes her just about the lowest paid Metropolitan star . . . and some of the slumberous old gentlemen in the boxes award her the honor of possessing what to them is the best singing voice —she doesn't sing at all! . . .

Yes, She's Temperamental!

MIMI'S ONLY OUTWARD EFFECT from her opera career is a touch of temperament which she must absorb from the other stars . . . The night she is scheduled to "go on" she won't eat her hamburg! . . .

Canine experts may come up with a point that a Sealyham is not an appropriate breed of dog to appear in the setting of some of the ancient operas, but they'll have to take that up with the Opera Association . . . we don't want to take sides and be relegated to Mimi's domicile . . .

Mimi's boss, Mrs. Chase, is busy with the local drive of the Metropolitan Opera Fund to raise the $60,000 which remains to be secured for the Met by the end of this month . . . Visitors at drive headquarters at the Ritz-Carlton this week have presented a sort of continuous fashion show in their nice spring outfits . . . One afternoon Peggy Capper arrived in a purple tweed suit with a matching hat and purple slippers . . . Before going to New York Mrs. William C. Cox dashed in to lend a helping hand, dressed in a blue and white striped skirt and blue jacket with white pique collar and tiny gardenia turban . . . Mrs. Ernest B. Dane, Jr., one of our most inveterate younger opera-goers, was a modish figure in navy blue with silver buttons, a silver fox scarf and navy pancake hat trimmed with a perky powder blue grosgrain bow . . . Still others taking an active interest in the Boston section of the drive are Mrs. Francis Bacon, Mrs. George Proctor and her daughter-in-law, Mrs. George Proctor, 3d, Mrs. Phineas Apragues, Mrs. Howard Turner, Mrs. George Hawley, and Mrs. Bartlett Harwood . . . who seldom misses a performance during the Met's Boston engagement . . .

NO ONE has said anything about it but a novel innovation for this year's Memorial Day Horse Show in Dedham may turn out to be a special class for penguins . . . We notice that Rear Admiral Richard E. Tucker Burr, Jr., Mr. and Mrs. Harris Fahnstock, the George R. Fearings, Mr. and Mrs. Arnold Hunnewell, Mr. and Mrs. Francis Marsh, Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Morrill and Mr. and Mrs. Philip L. You Can Be Beautiful

Softens as It Clears Skin

By ARLINE GOULD

YOU CAN HARDLY be Queen of the May among your particular playmates . . . if your complexion either is blemished by blackheads or is constantly threatened by them . . . so put on your Beauty Must list, without any further waste of time, a special cleansing substance to take the place of soap at least three times a week.

It's really a drastic measure against all skin blemishers, even though at the same time it softens as it clears . . . and you must admit that you've never bumped into anything before which does both those miraculous things at once! That's why this is so revolutionary, so wonderfully effective. A large 3¼-ounce jar is only $1, but we think the 8-ounce

SURE OF YOURSELF . . . sure of the exquisite clarity of your complexion . . . in any light, harsh or kind, that shines on your upturned face . . . so you can have the kind of unblemished skin that Brenda Marshall boasts . . . use a deep-pore clarifier and softener, a really unique aid, which Arline Gould describes today.

at $2.25 is the smart buy, because you'll find the whole family using it!

Though it's in cream form, there is an exclusive, unique, gritty substance in it which is a sure weapon against blackheads, white heads or milia, those annoying little, hard, white congestions under the skin which seem to grow and grow and resist attempts at eviction.

If blackheads are a sorrow in your life then it's a certainty that your skin is over-oily, and this "special skin wash" is contrived to control the too active glands, which started all the trouble in the beginning, anyway.

A dry skin with blackheads should be "washed" with this gritty cream once a week.

In this way you can insure a perpetually smooth and delightfully clean complexion.

Because of its marvelous cleansing powers, the skin wash smooths and whitens dark elbows and satinizes rough or pebbly skin on the neck and arms.

When using it, you simply add a few drops of lukewarm water to some cream in the palm of your hand and apply it in a circular motion with the tips of your fingers, wherever it's needed. This makes an unusual deep-pore, seaching paste.

If you'd like to learn all about this unique blemish-routing gritty cream to use instead of soap as a treatment that clears and smooths the skin, phone Arline Gould, LIBerty 4000, weekdays until 5:30, or write, enclosing a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

Pattern 9396 may be ordered only in misses' and women's sizes 14, 16, 18, 20, 32, 34, 36, 38, 40 and 42. Size 16 requires 3¼ yards 39-inch fabric and 1¾ yards lace edging.

Swagger Coat, Matching Hat

By ANNICE BRINK

SUCCESS STORY is an easy prediction to make for an intriguing younger set shine-or-pour fashion that's featured in a Boston shop . . . success because anyone who sees this set of pastel gabardine swagger coat and matching hat wants one, right away!

They come in wonderful misty-of-the-heather colors . . . that faraway, aqua-ish pastel green, or a blue that's like sky after the rain, just before the sun comes out fully and shines like mad on an arbutus pink. The gabardine is very light quality, fine ribbed and crisavenetted, and the coat is not much over five dollars, with the hat some thing over a dollar.

Even the cut of the coat is young with the gallant flare of a flyer, officer's uniform to the skirt. The skirt of your pastel tweed suit to pick it to make a lovely harmony with the coat should show its help about four inches of it.

As for the hat, it is the popular porkpie style which has so completely supplanted the riding hat as a casual, wear-it-everywhere any-time head covering.

Love And Marriage

Avoid Divided Authority

DEAR MISS FAIRFAX:

My husband works at night and he's around the house all day. My problem is who should tell the children what is right and wrong. When I punish them my husband always takes their side. Last night my little girl was so tired and sleepy at dinner that I told her she'd have to have a nap in the afternoons. But when I went to put her to sleep today, my husband insisted on taking her out.

I've read a great many books on child-training, and being the oldest in a family of five, myself, I feel I know something about child-rearing. If they do something he disapproves of, he says: "It's the way your mother is bringing you up."

WORRIED WIFE.

In reading the various books on child-rearing you must have seen it stated that divided authority is extremely bad for children. Not only is it bad for them in childhood, but the effect remains with them in after life.

Don't you think it would be well if you and your husband got together and come to a decision concerning the children and agree not to have arguments before them? A child of four certainly should have a nap every afternoon. In fact this is seen to in a number of progressive schools. Young children who do not get any sleep during the day are apt to become nervous.

BLONDIE — Private Property—No Trespassing

BART MERRICK, news correspondent somewhere in France was as American as they come, but the Alsatian family of Duvivier were his cousins. Twice removed on his mother's side, but nevertheless his cousins. Only two of them left now. Fernande Duvivier and her sweet old grandmother.

He adored the old lady and he loved black-eyed Fernande with the first real love of a rather adventuring heart.

It was therefore a keen disappointment to him not to be able to get leave to accompany them on their forced exodus from their beloved Strasbourg. He followed them to Perigueux to see how they had fared when a reliable substitute to cable his news in his absence set him free to go.

The Cast of Characters in "Evacuated City"

FERNANDE, who, with her grandmother,
MADAME DUVIVIER, are forced to flee Strasbourg
BART MERRICK, a reporter.
MIMI, the Madame's prized cat.

Perigueux is the provincial town some 80 miles from Bordeaux, where the exiled inhabitants of Strasbourg are domiciled for the duration of the war.

Bart found Fernande and Madame Duvivier allotted two rooms in a war time pension—a great change from the spacious elegance of their own home.

Fernande received him in a small over-furnished sitting room which was social salon by day and her own bedroom by night. She spoke in whispers and her eyes had the bitter look of unwept tears in them. Bart was surprised. He had always thought of her as gallant, and had expected to find her busy at some kind of war work, if only rolling bandages for the Red Cross.

He kissed her hand. "You must have courage, cherie."

"But I have courage. Am I not French? Certainly I have. It is not the war. We endure that with our heads high." She inclined her head to the closed folding door. Her voice was almost inaudible. "It is Grandmere. She is dying."

"That is bad. It hurts me too. But she is very old, Cherie. To die at that age—well, that is life."

Fernande's black eyes shone now, but the tears did not fall. "I know. She is tired. She lost all her sons in the last war. She cannot end her days in peace in the house she loved. I am resigned. But she asks all the time for Mimi. I cannot give her Mimi so that she may be a little happy before she dies. It breaks my heart."

"Mimi?" inquired Bart, searching his memory.

Fernande smiled faintly, showing a ghost of her vivacious charm. "Mimi is the little tortoiseshell cat Grandmere rescued from the storm four years ago. We all had to go in a hurry. It was forbidden to take the animals out. So Mimi was left behind—"

"Oh, yes, I remember. Yes, of course—"

A faint sound came from the room behind the sliding doors. Fernande heard it at once. She got up. "It was dear of you to come, Bart. Can you come again today? She needs me now, so I must go."

Bart followed the girl into the bedroom and saw Madame lying back on her pillows, a shadow of the alert, erect old lady he used to know.

"Tante Yvonne," he said softly, lifted a frail wrinkled hand, "it is Bart."

She looked at him without recognition. "Have you brought Mimi?

Fernande stood on tiptoe, kissed him on both cheeks and grabbed the basket from him.

Evacuated City

By Olga L. Rosmanith

The weather is terrible. She cannot sleep outside—"

"She has no strength to talk," said Fernande. "The doctor comes soon. You had better go."

Bart took leave of her quietly. Walking the unfamiliar street he saw many familiar faces. It was a strange thing, this transplantation of a city. An old gentleman with a stiff white imperial hailed him—but with diffidence. "M'sieur Merreeck, is it not?"

Bart remembered him with a white apron round his large middle selling him cheese and pate de fois gras and stuffed anchovies in his tiny Strasbourg shop. Now in his black clothes he looked like a retired banker. They chatted and exchanged news. "It is bad about Madame Duvivier. Such a good lady to all. We will all miss her and her good works. But to die in bed is better than a bomb. Here it is strange. We are all mixed up, but we get to know each other. We have the time to visit and make friends. We have good food—comfortable rooms. The people of Perigueux are very kind. Strange times—strange times——."

Bart got away from him, but he thought suddenly, I must try to find Mimi.

He did not let Fernande know of his intention in case he failed. It took him three days of wire-pulling with influential friends to obtain permission to enter the abandoned city.

There was no transport of any kind and he had to walk from the station. Traffic gone from the streets, boards over the shop windows, shops locked and blinds down, windows in the houses like blind eyes, military sentries here and there tramping a deserted street, it was a city dreaming of death.

Like an oasis in the maze of locked shops a cafe stood open for the soldiers' use. Bart went in and took a cup of coffee without lingering and went out. It was mid-afternoon of a damp winter day and very soon the dark would close in.

If Mimi had not been killed or rescued she would surely be hanging about the house. Bart laughed at himself as he walked up the silent beautiful street near the hospital. How could he expect to find Mimi after a month?

The antique facade of the house was flush with the street. He walked up the steps and peered in the salon window. Nothing to be seen but a scatter of things on the floor left there in haste. He walked 'round to the back where walled gardens adjoined a park. He stood wondering whether he dared climb the wall. He could not confide in a sentry that he hoped to smuggle a live worthless cat out of the city as it was forbidden. But if he were seen making such an informal entrance he would be taken for a looter and shot on sight. While he stood measuring the height of the wall with his eye, he felt a gentle push on his ankle. It was an emaciated little cat with a tortoise-shell face and soiled white paws.

"Mimi!" he cried, lifting her up. The cat purred. Bart looked up and down the lane under the garden walls. The sentry was a long way off. He put Mimi into his traveling bag and got her safely out of the city.

NO TIME TO LOSE

The little adventures of war! It seemed that you had only to make a thing difficult to make a human being enjoy doing it. Bart had never felt so excited about a news scoop as he felt about the rescue of Tante Yvonne's cat. It would make Fernande happy, too, and he could ask her. It was a terrible blow when he opened the bag in the safety of his Paris hotel room to find the little creature so enfeebled with starvation that it was dying. He managed to force some warm milk and brandy between its teeth. It was a race now to get the cat to Perigueux before it died so that its mistress could stroke its head before she died. Packing Mimi warmly in a small picnic basket, he went to Le Bourget and took the plane for Bordeaux.

Mimi was alive, but only just alive, when he reached the pension in Perigueux. He looked up and saw the blinds drawn over Mme. Duvivier's window. It would be the most violent disappointment of his life if he had arrived too late to give dear Tante Yvonne this last small happiness. He rang the bell in a state of nervous apprehension.

Fernande came down to him. "Does she still live!" he whispered.

Fernande nodded. "Yes—a little."

"Ah—that is good." Fully appreciating the drama of his simplicity, he put the basket in her hands. "Here is Mimi—also living just a little. I will stay here overnight and come back to see you tomorrow."

"NOT DEAD!

A wild color ran up in the girl's pale face. She stood on tiptoe and kissed him on both cheeks and grabbed the basket from him. It was early evening with the night closing in. Blacked-out and quiet, there was nothing for Bart to do now but prowl the streets, smoke nervously and go to bed. He lay awake in the small room craving for the confident life and the streaming lights of Broadway.

The was no telephone in the pension so he could get no news till he went round to see Fernande in the morning. He went as early as he dared. Seven o'clock, but she was up and dressed. He stood waiting in the hallway while she came to him down the stairs. Mimi, paws again snow white and tail standing high, jumped daintily after her.

"Jiminy crickets," he said, "the cat's not dead."

He saw now that Fernande was changed. Her face was relaxed and her big eyes smiling. "Neither is Grandmere. She rallied when Mimi curled up on the bed and began to purr. The doctor was here this morning. He said there is no doubt about it. She has made up her mind to live and she is going to."

Bart took Fernande in his arms. Burt took Fernande in his arms. "And so are we."

THE END.

2 Baby Farm Aides Hunted

CHICAGO, May 2 (INS) — A mother and daughter were sought today on charges they operated a "baby farm," wherein they cared for young unwed mothers during childbirth, then ejected the mothers and sold their babies.

The charges were made by Judge Harry M. Fisher who, acting on the complaint of a young woman who said her baby was being kept from her, declared:

"These two women are operating a baby farm. They sought out unwed women who were going to have babies, kept them in their home during their periods of confinement, then took their babies and sold them."

Judge Fisher directed the state's attorney's office to swear out kidnaping warrants against the missing women, Mrs. Mae Smith and her daughter Mary.

The judge said that in the case brought to his attention the young mother had been told she could have her baby upon payment of $150.

HUB NEWS IN MAKING ON RADIO

News in the making will be described at first hand for radio listeners tonight between 7:30 and 8 o'clock, when reporters and editors of the Record-American will collaborate with the staff of Radio Station WBZ-WBZA to give the public a word picture of how a great metropolitan newspaper functions.

News as it develops and as it is handled by city room veterans will be put on the air during the novel broadcast.

The feature presentation has been arranged by the National Broadcasting Co. together with the WBZ-WBZA management and the Record-American management.

Details were completed through negotiations between Harold G. Kern, publisher of the Record-American newspaper twins; Walter Howey, executive editor of the papers, and Vincent F. Callahan, assistant general manager of the big radio station properties in Boston and Springfield.

The news-in-the-making radio presentation is in connection with observance of the second anniversary of the Record-American twins.

state political setup.

WHAT HAPPENS HERE? . . . Mrs. Francis P. McConnell of Holliston used to be Mrs. F. Mellon Wilson of Hopedale, a cousin by marriage of the late internationally famous financier, Andrew W. Mellon of Pittsburgh . . . She resigned yesterday from the Gardner State Hospital, where she was taking a course in psychiatric nursing . . . Her move followed by one day Dr. Paul Faust's leaving of the same hospital . . . Dr. Faust was a member of the medical staff under the superintendent Dr. Charles E. Thompson . . . Echoing reverberations through the whole hospital followed Dr. Faust's leaving . . . And more will come.

FOR THE FIRST TIME in history, the aviators of Boston will hold an aviation ball Friday at the Hotel Somerset . . . In connection with that, prominent guests have been invited to bring friends . . . So Mayor Tobin will bring John Donovan of West Roxbury, city hall reporter, who made his first flight at the Squantum air meet in 1911 with the celebrated George Beatty . . . In Germany, at Coblentz, just after the war, it used to be quite a stunt for British army fliers to fly their tiny single seater ships UNDER the bridge over the river . . . So John went up with a friend from Jamaica Plain, in the American air corps, who took him up in a Salmson two-seater about as big as the side of a house . . . Then he went under the bridge," John says, telling the story . . . "We must have had all of a four foot clearance on each side . . ." So the American army forbade any such stunts, and John was the first, last, and only American passenger to fly under the bridge.

AUSTEN LAKE

Yawkey Vetoes Night Baseball for Boston

IT WAS MAYTIME AT ITS BLUE-AND-GOLD best. Maytime with the soft kiss of a syrupy sun. Maytime with Nature's vernal opiates clouding the senses. So Thomas Austin Yawkey, the hereditary millionaire who created Fenway's model ball yard, looked over his greening pastures, his liveried athletes and a horde of early sitters, and said he was content.

AUSTEN LAKE

Everywhere he went, he said, reporters asked when he was going to bring night baseball to Boston. "It's a daytime game," he said. "Night ball, Faugh!" There wouldn't be any nocturnal games in his property he promised with vehemence, unless . . . "unless the Boston people scream for it." He shrugged. Personally he hated the appearance of a flood of synthetic light like an island in a surrounding sea of darkness, the dank chill, the treacherous shadows and the half-seen crowd.

Cleveland had it, the Chicago White Sox, Philadelphia, Brooklyn, Cincinnati, etc. Profitable? Sure! "But I don't expect to make a fortune out of baseball," said Yawkey significantly.

I remember the genesis of his hatred against the night game. It was in Cleveland last July, a torrid night in the Municipal Stadium, when Yawkey had sat on the lower levels squinting into the glare of the overhead lights and trying to follow the flight of the ball under the shadow of his program. A cloud of Canadian flies had swept over the field, almost fogging the illumination and sticking to perspiring faces until suddenly the rains came and a chill lake wind swept the choking humidity away.

He Has His Superstitions

It was a heartbreak game, too, in which the Red Sox had built an 8-inning lead of 5 to 0 and Tom had seen it melt suddenly in the erratic ninth when the Sox began gouging infield divots with their chins, and Jack Wilson's hard-ball was being paddled to the outer limits of the gloom. Tom said later that he couldn't see a thing but a series of luminous hard-boiled eggs floating before his vision. He looked aloft into the lights and the images of the big bulbs on his retina would linger for long minutes. So he came away hating it. He still hates it and only recently when Bill Terry, the irascible and shrewd manager of the Giants, collaborated with a magazine article condemning night baseball, Tom had sent him a telegram, saying tersely, "You got something there. You and me both."

YAWKEY SWEPT HIS ARM AROUND THE GREEN painted slopes of his park. "There's 35,000 seats," he said. "All we got t'do to fill 'em is keep winning some games. Then the people will find time to come, night or day."

Still, last year, when an illumination company had offered to survey the ground and draft a set of blue prints for floodlights, he consented. He has the engineer's plans upstairs now with drawings of eight steel towers and great aerial trays of moonlight with a beautiful watercolor painting of how it would look in the gloom. "Phooie," said he.

Yawkey's attitude toward night ball is typical of a rich and sporting proprietor who operates his park as a combination business enterprise and personal toy. He is sufficiently commercial about his property to want it to pay its own upkeep, but also sufficiently sentimental to keep profits secondary to the pure beauties of the game itself.

For a baseball game in Tom's eye does not start at the moment the umpires stroll on the field and bid the game begin. The game starts in mid-morning when Yawkey taxies to the park, goes prowling

DIXIE BATTERY BOOMS FOR SOX IN RUBBER GAME

By BILL GRIMES

Now that they have regained a half interest in first place in the race for American League honors, and Manager Joe Cronin and Jim Tabor have furnished conclusive evidence that they have snapped out of their batting slumps, the Red Sox will send an All-Dixie battery, Jim Bagby and Johnny Peacock, after the third and deciding game of the White Sox series this afternoon at Fenway Park.

It will be Bagby's 1940 debut at Fenway Park. Jim turned in a great performance down in Washington a fortnight ago, when he shut out the Nats, but a week ago he was shelled off the mound by the Athletics in the City of Brotherly Love. After some nice relief pitching on the part of Herbie Hash a 12th inning circuit poke by Jim Tabor saved the day for the Red Sox.

Bill Dietrich will be on the mound for the White Sox. Manager Jim Dykes thought that he had the Cronmen on the run after Johnny Bagby's win in the opening game of this series but the Red Sox did a job on three of his hurlers yesterday to even up the count.

ROOKIES DO SHARE

As the count now stands, a couple of rookie pitchers, Mickie Harris and Herb Hash have accounted for exactly one-half of the Red Sox' eight victories. Harris walked out to the mound and stopped the Nats and the Athletics by going the entire distance on both of his starts. Hash did his stuff in the role of a relief man, twice as an understudy for the veteran Robert Moses Lefty Grove and on the other occasion for Denny Galehouse. Hash failed on his initial appearance as an understudy but he stole the show on his second and third performances.

Lefty Grove wasn't exactly a puzzle to the White Sox yesterday afternoon. When he retired in the fifth inning Grove was leading by a margin of 8 to 4, but the White Sox were taking to his offerings with so much consistency that it was very apparent that "Lefty" couldn't protect his advantage.

ALLOWS ONLY ONE HIT

So Mr. Herb Hash, late of Minneapolis, took over and knocked the White Sox lock on their heels. In the five rounds, he was on the hilltop, Hash allowed only one hit and no member of Jimmy Dykes' crew reached second base. It was as clear a cut brand of relief pitching as Manager Joe Cronin has seen in many moons.

DODGERS FORGIVEN BY FANS

By PAT ROBINSON
International News Service Sports Writer.

NEW YORK, May 2 (INS)—The gloom was thick in Pim's place in Brooklyn today.

Tragedy had struck, and theboys drank moodily and in silence. Finally, from his throne behind the bar, fat George broke the ice by remarking that "it was a beautiful dream while it lasted."

ThenPete, the taxi driver, ordered another rock and rye (for medicinal purposes only) and said somewhat truculantly: "Wel, you can't expect them guys to win 'em all, can you?"

This sage remark seemed to meet with general approval and Fred the bricklayer cheered the assemblage no little by assuring one and all that "the Dodgers would knock off them bums today."

Thus did Brooklyn react to the sad fate that the Reds had stopped the Dodgers, 9 to 2, ending a victory skein that had run through nine straight games.

DODGERS DIDN'T FOLD

For a time it appeared as if Hugh Casey was going to duplicate Tex Carleton's no-hitter of the previous day.

For three innings Casey let the Reds down without the semblance of a hit.

Then the storm broke and the Reds, their ire aroused by 12 hitless frames against Dodger pitchers, really went to town.

Werber opened with a double, Lombardi hit a homer with the bases fully tenanted, and before the inning was over Werber also chipped in with a round-trip wallop. Total damage, six hits, eight runs. Final result: Dodgers 2, Reds 9.

Bucky Walters gave the hard-hitting Dodgers only six hits for his third straight victory. And who said Bucky wouldn't be able to do as well this year as he did last? If anything, he's better than ever.

The only serious blow off Bucky was Pete Coscarart's third homer in as many days.

It is worth noting that the Dodgers didn't fold or dog it when eight runs to the bad, and now with the tension engendered by a winning streak off them, they probably will continue to win a majority of their games.

BROWNIES STRONGER

That was the only game in the National League but over in the American there was plenty of action.

The Yanks finally found their batting eyes and pounded out a 53 decision for Monty Pearson over a Brownie team that seems 100 per cent stronger than last year's misfits

Nelson potter gave only seven hits to give the Athletics a well-earned 3-1 verdict over the Indians. And the Tigers took a loosely-played and poorly-pitched battle from the Senator, 10 to 7.

Rain Halts B's Again; St. Louis Next Stop

CHICAGO, May 2—Prevented for the second straight day from meeting the Chicago Cubs, the Bees took off early this afternoon for St. Louis, where they face the ards in a two-game series tomorrow and Saturday.

The one game played here resulted in a Chicago victory when Dick Coffman and Dick Errickson blew a five-run lead. Yesterday's snow and today's rain prevented the Bees from trying to square accounts with the Cubs.

Casey Stengel, who has aged 10 years in the last 10 days, has both Bill Posedel and Nick Strincevith ready to throw against the Cards.

Posedel pitched well against the Phillies in Boston last week, and was a 15-game winner last season. Strincevich has lost both his starts this season but Casey has confidence in the kid and will keep using him regularly until he proves he can't win.

Rain has kept the Bees pitchers from attaining their best form, and Casey is hoping that the club will be able to hang on and hold its own in the West.

When the club gets back home and has a chance to work mornings, Stengel promises Bostonians that they will see an entirely different ball club.

By that time Lou Fette will be fit to pitch, and Big Jim Tobin's ankle should be mended.

B. U. Veteran Back Fractures Ankle

Veteran halfback, Sumner Levenson, Dorchester, will be lost to the Boston University football squad for the remainder of the spring practice session, it was announced today. Levenson suffered a fractured ankle in tackling scrimmage.

Feller Doesn't Fear Leap Year: Politics His Chief Interest

PHILADELPHIA, May 2 (AP)—Fireball Bobby Feller has money in the bank, an automobile and fine prospects, but he's thinking more about politics than about getting married.

The 21-year-old Cleveland mound artist is one of baseball's most eligible bachelors, but even though it's Leap Year "I've no proposals as yet," he acknowledged.

"And for the information of the girls," he said, "I'm not looking for a wife—not yet."

But politics intrigues the big right hander.

"You know I'm going to vote for President in the fall," he confided. "When President Roosevelt decides what he's going to do—well then I'll make up my mind."

Yankee Scout Must Lose Leg

JEROME, Ida., May 2 (INS) — Another leg amputation was believed necessary today to save the life of C. C. (Chick) Fraser, Western scout for the New York Yankee Baseball Club, in critical condition from blood infection.

Hospital doctors already have severed Fraser's right leg in an effort to save his life.

around the underground tunnels, mouses around the locker room, banters with the athletes, sits on the heights of the center field bleachers and soaks up the sun, meets stray members of the press, or dines with the visiting manager.

He has his pets among the alien pilots. Mickey Cochrane used to be his particular companion in the little, private dining room behind the hot-dog and peanut concession at the back of the grandstand. Mike seldom missed luncheon with Yawkey and Collins when he was managing Detroit, and since then Jimmy Dykes, loquacious and imaginative, has been Tom's No. 2 pet.

His Games Start in Mid-morning

YAWKEY SAW THE RED SOX PLAY nearly 100 ball games last year, sitting through early batting practice and lending his voice to the general clamor from the edges of the stand. At Fenway he watches the game from his glass-enclosed cubicle on the rim of the roof. But on the road he sits deep in the steerage sections or along the outfield fringes, varying his position as the tide of victories ebb and flow. He has his secret superstitions, always repeating the same combination of acts the day after the Sox win, be it a matter of choosing the same things from the hotel menu, or wearing the same haberdashery or squatting in the same location.

So I said to him this morning, questionably, "You're satisfied? It's been fun?" He said, a little scornfully, "It's the only fun there is nowadays." Well, $4,000,000 can buy a lot of fun. He might have bought a string of race horses and a breeding farm in the blue grass as Alfred Gwynn Vanderbilt did with part of his patrimony. He might have built expensive racing sloops as Mike Vanderbilt did and race before Newport's royalty. But baseball is Yawkey's idea of real fun and he invested his money unstintingly and shared his enjoyment with the Boston people. "I don't regret a penny of it," he said today.

2 GIRL EXPERTS CHALLENGE MALE TURF SELECTORS

NEW YORK, May 2 (AP)—June Warnke and Hambla Bauer are doing their best to uphold the average woman's belief that it takes a woman to find a bargain.

When New York state adopted the pari-mutuel betting system—which makes it easier for women to bet on the bangtails—two metropolitan papers each added a woman's name to their lists of turf experts who pick winners for the readers.

One was Warnke, the other was Bauer.

Apparently the papers thought that women would like to have women handicappers. Under the old bookie system, women weren't allowed in the betting rings—and messengers didn't get them the best possible odds.

Now they bet on equal footing and the two young women handicappers are doing a pretty good job of bargain hunting for them.

Both ranked well in the list of new York handicappers as the Jamaica meeting went into its second week.

QUITS SCHOOL FOR JOB

Miss Bauer, who cut short a journalism course at Columbia University to pick horses and write a daily racing feature has established a chit-chat rivalry with another handicapper on the same paper.

Her rival, who had to concede her an edge in winners after the first week at Jamaica, explained that the real art was in picking long shot winners — and pointed out that one of his selections had paid $33. He commented:

"You're all right, Hambia, but when you can pick 'em paying $33 or better just holler."

I was talking to Hambla in the Jamaica press box as the first race got under way. When a horse named Chin Music pulled out ahead in the stretch, fell back to second as another horse challenged, then came to win Miss Bauer suddenly lost interest in the conversation.

She jumped to her feet, called to her handicapping rival, and said softly:

"Holler, holler!"

"That horse," she explained, "was my choice in the first."

Chin Music paid $45.

Hambla picked three other winners for the day. That's 4 of 7.

June Warnke has done just about as well. Neither girl depends on luck for her choices. Both, in their middle 20's, have sufficient background and knowledge of horses to pick them intelligently.

Miss Bauer, whose home is in San Francisco, has been around horses all her life—once owned a couple. Remember Platinum Blond, Basque? She's trained several others.

She doesn't own any now—but doesn't guarantee that she won't get back into the game "if I ever have an income of $10,000 or so a year." Her current ambition is to become a racing columnist—

"but once you get into horse-racing it's not safe to say you'll stay out of it." She's tall, dark, a good conversationalist on the folksy side.

CLOCKS OWN HORSES

June Warnke became interested in horses about four years ago when she used to go over to the Thistledown track near Bedford, O., her home town. She started clocking them shortly thereafter and spent three racing seasons in Florida, handicapping for her own benefit.

She picks her horses chiefly from clocking in dawn workouts. She's up before the sun every morning and out to watch the training runs.

Miss Bauer, on the other hand, is strictly a handicapper. She judges horses on past performances, weights and all the other angles—watches early workouts about twice a week.

But both, it would seem, are pretty good at picking bargains.

Doc Prothro Firm Believer

PITTSBURGH, May 2 (AP)—Manager Doc Prothro admits no one is paying much attention to his downtrodden Phillies this year, but he's confident there'll come a day.

"I've got the structure for a great young ball club," declared the Philadelphia skipper, "and within a couple of years, maybe before that, we'll be up there fighting for the pennant and making it tough for the rest of the league."

Owner Gerald P. Nugent added his assent, asserting, "Yes, we have a pretty good young ball club together and it's going to improve as it goes along. All we need is a little more hitting power on this club and we could go places this year."

MRS. ABEL SEES DIXIE 'CAP WIN

By the Associated Press

The hopes of Mrs. A. J. Abel for her first victory in the Dixie Handicap at Pimlico May 8 rose when her Honey Cloud won the $2500 Gittings Handicap—a prepping race for the Dixie—at Pimlico.

Under a strong ride of Jockey Sonny Workman the transformed pacer won from three other Dixie candidates by running the mile and a sixteenth in 1:45 3-5 to defeat A. C. Bostwick's Belay, H. C. Hatch's Filisteo and John A. Manfuso's Affair.

Winner of the Rowe Memorial Handicap and the Southern Maryland Handicap at Bowie, the Abel colorbearer has proved his mettle and cheomes a prime contender for the Dixie honors.

The Swift Stakes to be decided at Belmont June 8 is America's oldest added money event for three-year-olds exclusively at a sprint distance. The Swift is run over a distance of seven furlongs.

Virtually every candidate for racing's triple crown is among the 82 candidates named for the Swift. Bimelech heads the group for the midway feature of Belmont week.

Among the other notables entered are the Belair Stud's Fenelon, J. F. Byers' Robert E. Lee, Harold A. Clark's Royal Man, and the Greentree Stable's Red Dock.

A total of 870 entries, a record number, has been received for Deleware Park's 13 stakes to be run during the race meeting beginning May 29, according to Secretary Eddie Brennan.

For the 1939 running of the stakes—which include the three $10,000 events, the Kent Handicap, the New Castle Handicap and the Sussex Handicap—the entry list was only 725.

Numerous improvements all calculated to make the sport more pleasant for spectators have been installed at North Randall for the spring racing meeting which opens May 22.

Four driveways approaching the ground are being resurfaced, the barn toppled last year by a windstorm has been rebuilt, bringing the park stall capacity to 1100, and an attractive vista and shrubbery installed along the infield across from the grandstand adds a pleasing note.

The Be Lair stud's Fighting Fox was vanned over to Jamaica from Aqueduct Wednesday and breezed a mile in 1:45 under a tight hold in a workout that was pleasing to Sunny Jim Fitzsimmons, his trainer.

Fighting Fox was assigned top weight of 135 pounds for the six-furlong Jamaica Handicap Saturday, but there is doubt he will start.

Clay Puett, inventor of the starting device that bears his name, has returned to Pimlico where he will remain a few days before going on to Boston, Toronto and Baltimore.

His gate will be used this year at five tracks in eastern Canada and four in western Canada in addition to many tracks in this country.

Hollywood Wants Feller in Fall

Brooklyn's Gone Nuts Over Dodgers' Surge

By the Associated Press

Bobby Feller has offers from two movie studios to make a series of shorts next fall . . . Umpire Bill Stewart was behind the plate in the last two no-hitters in the National League . . . Oddly enough, the same teams were involved . . . Auburn and Villanova are trying to get together on a football date in Montgomery next fall . . . Glad to report Jackie Hayes, sidelined for several weeks with an eye ailment, is working out with the White Sox again . . . Leo J. Marks, Columbus, Ohio sportsman, has presented his fiancee with the entire division of his racing stable in training at Churchill Downs.

With the sidelines loaded with such big shots as the DiMaggios, the Powells, the Gomezes, etc., the philosophy of the major leagues this year would appear to be nothing ventured, nothing sprained.

Brooklyn is simply nuts over the Dodgers . . . headline in the World-Telegram: "Nuts to everything—hooray for Tex Carleton . . . What did Napoleon ever do that Dodgers can't? . . . Children of destiny threaten to run winning streak to at least 50" . . . Everybody pokes a lot of fun at Durocher's Dizzy crew, but one and all are for them 105 per cent . . . While Carleton was unreeling his no-hitter, Announcer Red Barber refused to say anything about the Red hit totals at the end of each inning for fear of putting the whammy on Tex . . .

Hub Fight Fans To See Buffalo Star Monday

New England fight fans have seen some great amateur fight cards during the current season, but the big intercity show at the Arena next Monday night by Buffalo, Boston and Philadelphia teams is really the tops.

The intercity show consists of five classes at 126, 135, 147 and 160 pounds and heavyweights. In addition there will be one open division for the heavy boys and a class of novices at 160 pounds.

FIRST FIGHT IN BOSTON

Making his first Boston appearance will be "Irish" Jimmy Winters, sensational Buffalo youngster. In a recent intercity show held in Buffalo, Jimmy completely stole the spotlight from a bevy of stars bearing national and sectional championships. Even the appearance of Cyclone Williams, the big heavyweight, and Henry Brimm, national welterweight champion on the same card, faded into secondary importance and interest when compared with the brilliant showing of Winters in defeating Frank Robinson of Oil City, Pa., the same boy who won the National 126 pounds championship at Boston Garden on April 10.

GETS OFF DECK TO WIN

Jimmy won his laurels the hard way surviving a severe drubbing in the second round, in which he was decked by a sizzling right to the chin for a count of nine, but came back to win the remaining three rounds of a five-round contest in true championship fashion. Every upper New York state boxing expert is predicting great things of this Irish lad, and Boston fans are bound to be more than pleased with his performance.

Yesterday, Tom Kanaly announced that Al Dutra of Cambridge, New England 135-pound champion in 1939, and one of the best lightweights in this section, had been named as one of the Boston team.

Al has been going great guns in recent tournaments held throughout New England and is bound to make the going rough and tough for the Buffalo entry.

Salem Legion Post Starts Weekly Bouts

Post 23, American Legion, will inaugurate a series of weekly amateur boxing shows at the North Street Arena, Salem, tonight.

The classes are 126-pound novice, 135, 147, 160 and heavyweight, open.

The Legion has been sponsoring bouts every two weeks since last fall and decided to try operating on a weekly basis as the result of requests from fans.

CRONIN SENDS BAGBY AFTER DECIDING TILT

Indian, was charged with the defeat, his third in as many starts. Eaves lasted only three innings, during which time he was nicked for five runs, six hits and three walks. Then came Pete Appleton, who was even less effective and wilder than his Redskin teammate, for he went for six runs, five hits and four walks in two rounds, after which Ed Welland managed to hold the Red Sox to one run and a couple of hits.

CRONIN FINDS EYE

Manager Joe Cronin, who, as usual, in the spring, hadn't been hitting, got two for four yesterday and drove in four of the dozen Boston tallies. Jimmie Foxx connected for his fifth home run of the season, with one mate aboard, and his R. B. I. is now 22, while Jim Tabor made two singles and a double, Lou Finney a three-bagger and a single and Teddy Williams came up with two "blows," both one base knocks.

The White Sox didn't waste any time working on Uncle Mose Grove, for Bob Kennedy, the first batter, hit for the circuit and but for a fine throw to Bobby Doerr by Teddy Williams, the visitors might have finished the veteran southpaw in the opening frame.

The Red Sox pulled back on even terms with the Dykesmen in the second inning, when Jim Tabor's Texas league double scored Jimmy Foxx, who had walked and advanced to the keystone sack on a pass ball.

GROVE STARTED FIRE

Lefty started the Red Sox on their way to a victory when he opened the third inning with a single to center field, for with one man down, he went to second on Cramer's drive to center and galloped home on a Williams single to right. Foxx drew another walk, filling the bases and then Joe Cronin slapped a two-run hit to center to give his Red Sox a 4 to 1 lead.

FOXX HITS ANOTHER

The Red Sox pushed four more runs across in the fourth on two hits and three bases on balls, Manager Joe Cronin delivering another two-run single with two out.

After getting to Grove for two hits in the fourth, the White Sox capitalized on a couple of passes and a Joe Kuhel home run into the bull pen in the fifth for three runs, and Lefty said "good afternoon" to the 6800 customers, and Herb Hash took over the mound duties.

A Tabor two-bagger—his second of the afternoon—followed by a Desautels sacrifice and a passed ball accounted for another Red Sox run in the fifth, and then Jimmy Foxx drove one into the screen in deep left center field with Teddy Williams on in the sixth for two more tallies. Hash crossed everyone up by doubling in the seventh, and he eventually scored the 12th and final run.

Arena Fights Postponed

Matchmaker Rip Valenti of the Goodwin A. C. today announced the postponement of the boxing show scheduled tomorrow night at the Arena.

The show will be staged a week from Friday night, May 10, and the same card will be presented.

In the feature, George Salamone East Boston, and Bob "Poison" Ivy, Hartford, who recently clashed in a bristling 10-round draw, meet again over the 10-round route.

Other bouts, all sixes, will be Tom Casey, brother of Wrestling Champion Steve, vs. Frank Mercurio; Tony Ferry vs. Clint Moran; Johnny Skhor vs. Al Bouchard; Bill Weinberg vs. Herb Coonan and Bill Tordiglione vs. Billy Connerty.

Casey, new Irish "white hope," who has won two starts in the ring by third-round knockouts, will be making his local debut.

The Angel Pins Casey's Brother

The Casey brothers batted for .500 at the Arena last night, world's champion Steve defeating Matros Kirilenko and Jim bowing to The Angel's bear-hug in a double-wind-up before close to 4500 wrestling patrons.

The Angel ran into unexpected trouble from Casey. The Irishman, when in a tough spot, made a grab for the grotesque one's proboscis, which is very plentiful, forcing the European Angel to give ground on many occasions.

In the end though, it was the bear-hug which finished off Jim. The Angel rendered him almost unconscious, exerting terrific pressure, then forced him to the mat for the fall and match in 12 minutes, three seconds.

The world's champion, Steve Casey, had a comparatively easy time of it, using his superior strength to great advantage and wearing down the Russian with body lifts and slams in 16 minutes, 41 seconds.
